

Architects Hit Shuffle At City Hall

By TED SHACKLEFORD

In an unprecedented move, Vancouver Island architects have intervened in the reorganization of city hall engineering staff.

Revenge Of Heckled

VANCOUVER (CP)—For Lawrence Kerahaw, heckling politicians, especially those belonging to the New Democratic Party, is a hobby.

He said he has been doing it for two years, not even sparing his brother Brian, president of the Vancouver Centre Progressive Conservative Association.

He said he's been punched, jostled, kicked and threatened with an iron poker and warned never to attend an NDP meeting again.

Yesterday was the day of retribution. He received a telephone apology for his treatment at NDP meetings and an invitation to replace a speaker at a meeting in Vancouver Quadra.

When he arrived with a 2,000-word speech at the address given he found an empty store.

$670,000 Star

Real Madrid soccer club has traded inside forward Luis del Sol to Turin of Italy for the greatest fee in soccer history—$672,000. Previous high for a soccer trade was met earlier this season when Barcelona's Luis Suarez went to Internazionale of Milan for $600,000.

Body in Creek

NELSON (CP)—The naked body of five-year-old Mark Huiberts, object of a search by hundreds of volunteers since he disappeared Tuesday, was found Friday in Cottonwood Creek. The last flowing creek had ripped off his clothing.

Lifton Death Appeal Heard Here June 18

Appeal of Eric Lifton against conviction for the murder of Vancouver city detective will be heard in B.C. Appeal Court at Victoria's court house, June 18.

Lifton has been sentenced to hang for shooting Larry Short to death at Vancouver's Bayshore Inn. Under the Criminal Code, convictions for capital murder are automatically appealed.

Another Pipeline Definite

WINNIPEG (CP)—Agriculture Minister Hamilton said Friday a second Trans-Canada pipeline would have to be built.

Crode all needs of Montreal would demand a second line "by 1967," he agreed.

The line probably will follow the route of the CNE, would have to be built years in advance of its need and would have to be in Montreal by the time industry's needs were realized.

Children Hurlled From Ninth Floor

BOSTON (UPI)—Two young children were hurled to their deaths last night from the ninth floor of the Statler-Hilton Hotel by their 30-year-old mother, police said.

Police were holding the woman pending further investigation.

The woman first threw her three-year-old daughter and then her seven-year-old son to the pavement below, police said. Both children were dead on arrival at a hospital.

Police said the incident occurred shortly before midnight, about six hours after the woman checked into the downtown hotel.

Tricked To Safety

Cigarette offered by navy Capt. L. B. Jensen was here used to grab hand of unidentified sailor and pull him to safety from ledge on Halifax's Angus MacDonald Bridge where he had climbed Friday night, causing one of worst traffic jams in Halifax history. (CP Photofax.)

Justice Takes Gamble Five Years for Killing

NANAIMO—Mr. Justice J. G. A. Hutcheson took a gamble Friday and sentenced a youth convicted of manslaughter in the beating death of a 22-year-old father to only five years.

Maximum sentence for manslaughter is life imprisonment.

Gary Vera Parkinson, 18, of Courtenay was found guilty in the death of Donald Butler in Courtenay Jan. 27 after being kicked and beaten as he lay on the road surrounded by a milling gang of youths.

Parkinson was also convicted of causing bodily harm and given five years concurrent.

Mr. Justice Hutcheson said: "No punishment you can undergo will bring back the man who died. You have to live with that memory."

"I am going to take a gamble on you, Parkinson. Because of your youth I think you can be rehabilitated. Instead of giving you a heavy sentence I will make it five years."

Parkinson's foster mother broke down as the sentence was passed and was led sobbing from the court room.

Defence counsel Harold Hine said Parkinson was raised in a home where there was no father.

Trial of Peter Louis and Martin Day in the same case begins Tuesday.

Terrorists Step Up Murders in Dark

ALGIERS (AP)—Terrorist attacks slackened most of this day in Algiers but by nightfall the slaughter increased once more, pushing the death toll from six to 15 in a few hours.

The explosion of a booby-trapped car took the biggest single toll—a 75-year-old Frenchwoman and three Muslims.

BAZOOKA BLASTS
Later the sound of bursting bazooka projectiles was heard near the Muslim district of Dar El Kef.

Around Oran, another stronghold of the European Secret Army in French, the terrorists stepped up their activity.

MAN, WIFE DIED

A European man and wife and six Muslims were killed in separate attacks outside Oran. There were 12 bomb explosions in the town of Perrégaux.

Humanitarian, Says Liberal

Take 1,000 Chinese

CALGARY (CP)—Canada should bring in 1,000 refugees from Communist China as a humanitarian gesture, Dr. Frank Morley, Liberal candidate for Calgary South, said Friday night.

Dr. Morley said the move could spark similar action throughout the Western world and could serve as a potent weapon in the free world's struggle with communism.

"I would not want this to become a political issue. I'm making the suggestion on humanitarian grounds and as an individual."

Dr. Morley said the Communist Chinese have used restrictive Western immigration policies as a telling weapon in their propaganda battle.

"The Chinese Reds have been able to tell their people that the white man is not concerned with the problems of the Chinese; that the whites are interested in the Oriental only as a pawn in the battle between democracy and communism."

"A humanitarian gesture of the sort I have suggested would do much to convince the enslaved Chinese that we do indeed care about their problems and that we are concerned with their welfare."

Chinese have proven to be good immigrants, he said.

"They're as fine as immigrants as we've ever had. They work hard, they pay their bills, they take care of their poor and they don't sponge on the public."

Cow Has Deer-Like Features Sheds Horns Every January

REGINA (CP)—A cow that some think is a cross between a cow and a deer has been put out to pasture where it will be available for continued tests on its ancestry.

The doe-faced bovine recently was shipped for sale to the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool livestock division market in Regina.

It was sold to Gervase Smith, a Regina livestock man, who pastured the animal. When the animal was brought to the stockyards last week by owner Ed Smith of Dubuc, Sask., livestock men noticed it had many deer-like characteristics.

A wild deer and a domestic cow was impossible and unknown, but, after looking at the animal in the stockyards agreed: "It sure looks like it has happened."

Laboratory test of a blood sample showed the animal had bovine blood. Samples of hair prove to be typically bovine. The animal had normal bovine hoofs, but its legs, hindquarters, neck and head appear to be more deer-like than bovine.

A puzzling fact is the animal has lost three sets of horns in three years, dropping them in January as deer do.

A fourth set now is growing from soft tissue not attached to the animal's skull as bovine horns normally are.

Hoffa Charged In Big Payoff As Woes Mount

JAMES HOFFA

WASHINGTON (AP)—Teamsters Union President James Hoffa was indicted by a federal grand jury yesterday on charges of accepting more than $1,000,000 in illegal payments from a Michigan trucking company.

Attorney-General Robert Kennedy announced the two-count indictment was returned in Nashville, Tenn.

He said it accuses Hoffa and the late Owen (Bert) Brennan, former Teamster vice-president, of receiving $1,000,000 from Commercial Carriers Inc.

CO-DEFENDANT

Kennedy said Commercial Carriers, an automobile transport company, also was named as a defendant.

Kennedy said one count accuses Hoffa and Brennan of violating a Taft-Hartley Act provision which prohibits employee representatives from demanding or receiving payments from employers, except for wages or other specified exceptions.

$10,000 FINE

Conviction on the charges could bring a maximum penalty of $10,000 fine and a year in jail for Hoffa and $10,000 fine for Commercial Carriers.

Hoffa at present is under indictment in Florida on federal charges alleging misuse of more than $100,000 in union funds. The Florida charges were related to a real estate development in Brevard County, Fla.

BREAKS WITH UNION

Meanwhile, Sam Baron, 50-year-old chief of the union's warehouse division, broke with the Teamsters Friday after refusing to withdraw an assault charge against Hoffa.

Hoffa is free on $500 bail.

Red China Warns U.S.

TOKYO (UPI)—Communist China warned today that if war breaks out in southeast Asia the U.S. "will suffer a worse defeat than it did in Korea."

The Chinese said they "can absolutely not tolerate... any new bridgeheads" in areas bordering on the China mainland.

"We must serve a fresh warning to the Kennedy government it shall be held fully responsible for all grave consequences arising from its policy of playing with fire."

"Hardly," answered the judge. "At least he is in the type of hospital where they are unlikely to oblige him by operating unnecessarily."

De Gaulle Sees 'Arbiter' Role

GUERET, France (Reuters)—President de Gaulle said Friday night "Europe must play the role of an arbiter between the two colossal powers," (See Page 38.)

Political union of Europe is necessary in order that there should be a great force and a centre of influence which only Europe could provide, he said.

De Gaulle, who has been told of President Kennedy's Thursday remarks in Washington about Franco-American relations, added: "We form part of an alliance and we have no intention of being unfaithful to it."

MORE VOICE

Kennedy condemned de Gaulle's policy of individual nations having their own nuclear strike force and reminded his allies that the U.S. is carrying the main defence burden and would have "some voice" on Berlin.

De Gaulle warned that he would not hesitate to use his power to ensure continuity and stability of government in France if this became necessary.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

The lobby of Victoria police court was jammed yesterday with police, lawyers, witnesses, wives and babies. There weren't many more cases on the list than average—and yet the place looked like dinner-time in a refugee camp.

The police station is too dark, too small and too smelly. When are they going to build a new one? As soon as the Victoria taxpayers—renowned as Canada's stingiest—can be persuaded to part with another dollar or two a year. That may be never.

There's a new fad in the schools. Chewing flavored toothpicks. They come in two flavors: "Hot" (cinnamon) and "Cool" (mint).

At least one child has been strapped for chewing a toothpick in class. There's no reason why it should interfere with learning—but there is something defiant about the act of chewing a toothpick. The toothpick proclaims the chewer a man (or a child) who doesn't give a snap for anyone. This is a common attitude in the world, but it won't do in a classroom.

Soon No Abuse Left

That's all very well. But everybody is so sensitive that there won't be any terms of abuse left, with any color to them. Bane? The butchers will complain. Garbage? Sanitation technicians will be insulted. Soon we will have nothing left but the soft, grey limp words, made to please soft, grey people.

New light on the late Axel Wenner-Gren, from a book called "Impossible—Yet It Happened," by R. DeWitt Miller:

Just Strained Nerves

"Herr Wenner-Gren listened with disbelief to his wife's story. He put the whole thing down to strained nerves, and suggested a cruise in their yacht, the Southern Cross.

Moslems Riot Over Movie

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The American consulate at Peshawar, Pakistan, was damaged by a mob demonstrating against reported plans of a U.S.-Italian movie firm to make a film of the life of Mohammed, the state department reported. Devout Moslems stoutly opposed any attempt to pictorialize the prophet.

Your Good Health

Duodenal Ulcers Quite Common But Rarely Grow Malignant

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 66 and bothered with a lot of gas on my stomach. I have had stomach trouble for years and X-rays showed I have a peptic ulcer of the duodenum, which I have been having along. Do ulcers ever develop into tumors? Is there any way of telling whether an ulcer is malignant, without a biopsy? None of my doctors has advised an operation.—C.D.S.

Duodenal ulcers are quite common. Having them become malignant is rare. (Stomach, as contrasted with duodenal, ulcers should be regarded with suspicion.)

If a duodenal ulcer does become malignant, this would be suggested by one or more significant changes: First, a change in the ulcerated area, which X-rays would show; blood in the stool, anemia, loss of weight. Evidently none of these signs has occurred in your case.

The gas may be due to a narrowing of the outlet of the stomach, due to scarring from the ulcer, or from some entirely unrelated factor, as a biliary gall bladder, or an obstructive habit of air-swallowing.

Dear Dr. Molner: My father and I, out of a family of five, develop "cold sores" every few weeks. The rest of the family never have them. Can you suggest anything we could do?—P.M.

Cold sores are usually a virus infection which more commonly attacks certain individuals who happen to be susceptible. Curiously, an ordinary smallpox vaccination very often puts an end to this trouble. (If you read about the recent smallpox outbreak in Europe, you can see that it pays to keep your smallpox inoculations up to date.)

Dear Doctor: Is it possible to get pregnant while on a diet and taking diet pills? And if so would it harm the baby?—E.A.H.

Certainly it's possible to become pregnant, diet or no diet. As to the "reducing pills" and your diet during pregnancy, I can say only this, emphatically: It depends on the medicine, the amount of it, and your physical condition, so do as your doctor advises.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was told that olive oil will dissolve gall stones. I have them. What do you think of this?—L.L.

I'm sorry you have gall stones. If I knew of one case in which anything had dissolved gall stones, I would say so. But I don't.

Red Chinese in Canada To Step Up Trade

VANCOUVER (CP)—Nine Chinese businessmen arrived Friday on a mission to promote sale of goods from Communist China.

They leave today for Montreal, stopping off at Winnipeg to confer with W. C. McNamara, chief commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board.

"We are a private group of businessmen from Hong Kong," said a spokesman. "We hope to set up outlets for Chinese goods in Canada."

Peterson Opens Science Fair

Education Minister Leslie Peterson last night flicked the switch on a flashlight to open the first Greater Victoria schools science fair.

The beam of light was directed at a "target" containing a photo-electric cell which in turn lighted a sign with the words "welcome to the science fair."

Mr. Peterson said at a similar show in Vancouver recently he was required to carry out the traditional ribbon-cutting opening ceremony. "I guess this proves we are more advanced in Victoria," the minister said.

AROUND PROJECTS

Students, parents and friends crowded about the 40 projects displayed in the Douglas Room of the Hudson's Bay Company store. The show continues until 4:30 p.m. today.

First prize winner was Melvin Falk, Grade 9, Lansdowne Junior High, for his display of sea shells.

WIND RECORDER

Third prize went to Dwight Waring, Grade 9, Lansdowne Junior High, for his wind speed recorder.

Honorable mentions were awarded Angus Arrol, Grade 9, Oak Bay Junior High, unique form of transmitting; John Fisher, Grade 9, Lansdowne Junior High, parabolic steam generator; John Davies, Oak Bay Junior High, weather station; John Hall, Grade 9, Lansdowne Junior High, cross-section of a power dam.

GROW QUICKLY

Don Holmes, chairman of Victoria branch, B.C. Science Teachers' Association, said he hoped the fair would become an annual event and grow quickly in stature. He asked support of industry and the general public in the venture.

"We are proud of this fair and we are proud of the students," said Mr. Holmes.

Mr. Peterson said while science fairs are relatively new in Canada they have been held in the U.S. for 30 years and this year 500,000 students took part. "I am told that 92 per cent of those who win prizes in U.S. science fairs when they leave school enter the field of science," the minister said.

New Island Whale Haul Hits 91

VANCOUVER (CP)—Despite generally poor weather conditions, the first month of operations of the six-ship whaling fleet working out of Coal Harbor on the north end of Vancouver Island has been satisfactory. It is reported here.

The fleet was confined to port for 15 days because of poor weather. But 91 whales have been caught, only slightly less than the same period in 1959, the last year of operations of the Western Canada Whaling Co. Ltd.

Two Japanese whale catchers and four other boats are operating on the west coast of the island.

Most whales caught have been sperm whales, valuable for their oil but poor in meat content. Four big blue whales, the rarest and most valuable species, have been caught. Most of the catch has been of good size.

A cold storage plant at the whaling station will be completed soon.

Allied Aid in Thailand 'Useful' Show of Force

BANGKOK (Reuters)—Gen. Paul Harkins, commander of the American troops in Thailand, said Friday the presence of other SEATO forces here would heighten the defence pact's show of solidarity in the face of Communist moves in neighboring Laos.

Although major fighting may have stopped, the general said he does not think the Laotian crisis has abated.

But Thai Premier Sarit Thanarat was reported to have told his cabinet that the Thai army, backed by 2,800 United States marines and infantrymen, is strong enough to stop any Communist invasion from Laos.

'USEFUL' HELP
Harkins told a press conference that it would be "useful" to have here other troops of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

However, it appeared that other pact members would not send even token forces unless there is a formal request from Thailand.

ALLIES THANKED
Sources said Thanarat told the cabinet that all SEATO nations except France had offered to send token forces to Thailand and had been thanked for their offers.

The SEATO nations are the U.S., Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, The Philippines and Thailand.

NO FORMAL REQUEST YET
Thailand would have no objection if SEATO nations responded to an informal request for token forces, the sources said, and pointed out that Thailand had not formally asked for the U.S. marines to be sent in.

Harkins, who arrived here to set up a command headquarters for the U.S. troops said there is no plan to send them into Laos.

LITTLE CHANGE
He said he does not think there has been "too much change" in the military situation inside Laos since the fall of Houei Sai on the Mekong River border with Thailand—to the pro-Communists.

Meanwhile, Prince Souvanna Phouma, the neutralist who is the choice of the United States and other major powers to form a coalition government, cut short his stay in France to return to Laos by way of London to resume political negotiations.

Tch, Tch, Says Nikita Yanks Back in the Net

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev Friday pictured the dispatch of United States marines to Thailand as an unwise move that might lead to another Korea. The marines will shoot, he said, "and those at whom they shoot will shoot back."

"I am surprised at how the Americans plunged into this net. Once you are in, you know, it is not so easy to get out."

"They went into Korea very easily and nevertheless that lasted three years."

Nobody Wants
Ottawa Post

WASHINGTON (CP)—The White House has been shopping around for an ambassador to Canada—but without much apparent success.

Congressman Cornelius Gallagher said Friday he had been offered the ambassadorship but declined.

"Later on, when I've run the course in politics, I'd like something like this," the 41-year-old New Jersey Democrat said.

HOUSE DELEGATION
A member of Congress since 1958, he is a member of the house delegation to the Canada-U.S. interparliamentary meetings.

Gallagher said the ambassadorship was offered to him by a presidential aide during the last few days.

PREFERS CABINET
Previously there were reports that President Kennedy discussed the post with Edith Green, a congresswoman from Oregon, but she also showed no interest. An associate said she would prefer a position in Kennedy's cabinet.

At present the U.S. ambassador in Ottawa is Livingston Merchant, a veteran career diplomat, who has decided to retire from government service.

Rebel Without Pause

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP)—Philosopher Bertrand Russell, celebrating his 90th birthday Friday, describes his longevity as a fluke.

"It's nothing more than a fluke of nature," Lord Russell said in an interview. "However, it must have something to do with the glands. Mine seem to be all right."

A Nobel Prize-winner whose unconventional opinions have made him a storm centre for a half century, Russell answered questions Friday in a clear but squeaky voice.

Long Life 'A Fluke'

"I'm a smoker," he said. "I've smoked a pipe the whole day long, almost without ceasing, for at least 70 years."

"And I like alcohol," he added. "And I use it."

At his age, many men think a great deal about the past. But not Russell.

Bill Gives Spouse Right to Sue

LONDON (Reuters)—The House of Commons yesterday agreed to a radical change in the law to give a wife the right to sue her husband or a husband his wife.

At present, a man and wife are regarded in British law as one in cases of civil wrong and neither can sue the other unless a wife wants to claim her own property.

Whether the bill, a private one, becomes law will depend on its passage through the House of Lords and the amount of parliamentary time available for private members bills.

Death Probe Reopened In Estes Case

BRYAN, Tex. (UPI)—Judge John Barron has ordered a grand jury to reopen immediately the investigation of the strange death of Henry Marshall, an agriculture department worker officially said to have committed suicide after breaking the Billie Sol Estes case.

Barron ordered the grand jury to start the investigation Monday in Franklin, Tex.

FIVE SHOTS
Marshall, 51, was found dead on his ranch near Franklin last June 3 with a 22-calibre rifle a foot from his body. There were five rifle wounds in his body.

Meanwhile, Senator John McClellan said in Washington his committee will hold public hearings aimed at "getting to the root" of the Billie Sol Estes case.

WE BUY A MAN

At 4 a.m. last Thursday, in the car-park of a restaurant somewhere off Britain's M1 motorway, we bought a man for £5.

And thus, with a quick haggle and a furtive exchange of bank notes, we rescued him from the clutches of a ruthless gang of 1962-style slave traders from a fate which—to the disgrace of this nation—is befalling scores of his fellow countrymen almost every day of the week in Britain NOW.

Kitimat Revival

TEN YEARS AGO when the great hydro-electric project at Kemano was being built for the new aluminum industry at Kitimat, it was always expected that other industries would take advantage of the excess power available to establish themselves in the district.

The main hope was that near Kitimat would be developed a large pulp and paper centre, and plans advanced to the formation of an alliance between the old Powell River Company and Alcan itself to set the wheels in motion.

Unfortunately difficulties of timber supply, lack of access and a threatened state of over-production in the industry halted the project in the mid-1950s, and since then Alcan has been the sole major electrical user in the Kitimat area, and less than half of the Kemano power potential is being utilized.

Recently, however, there has been an urge in the pulp and paper industry towards a new wave of expansion. New mills are being planned for the interior and for the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Also on the cards, according to Premier Bennett, is a revival of the Kitimat project. While individual companies in the industry admit that something is in the wind they also say that it is too early to make a pronouncement of plans.

However it is assumed that MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River and Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., who have most of the suitable timber supply in the Kitimat area, will be interested parties either individually or collectively.

It is to be hoped that the revived attempt will be successful because it will be to the advantage of all in B.C. if this valuable source of electric power now lying idle at Kemano can be brought into use.

It is equally good news that the Tahsis Company is well ahead with its plans for an integrated forest industry plant, including a pulp mill, at its Gold River property on the Murchison Arm of Vancouver Island.

A pulp mill at Gold River would serve to open up a part of Vancouver Island where access is now strictly limited to those with permits to use a private road, or who are able to travel by air or sea.

There can be little doubt that B.C. with its huge supply of regenerative timber is bound more and more to rely on the pulp and paper industry, as well as other timber products, for its revenue.

Exempt Them All

IT IS REGRETTABLE—and no doubt will seem doubly so to those aldermen who are veterans of past battles over service-station closing hours—that city council is again involved in this matter. Such is the case through no wish of the council, but because provincial law was amended at the last legislative session to provide that stations must close in the evening unless exempted by municipal bylaws.

Thus the aldermen, after a respite in which the stations have operated as they pleased without noticeable signs of suffering, once more are coming under pressure from opposing groups of operators, for and against restriction.

Because it is a tourist centre, and no less for the convenience of its own citizens, Victoria patently must have some automotive service outlets open at night. Charged with seeing to the welfare and convenience of the community, council therefore has a responsibility to make sure that this amenity is as far as possible preserved.

But it has neither the responsibility nor the moral right to interfere in business by dictating hours of operation, except perhaps where a nuisance is shown to exist, nor to discriminate by ruling that some stations may stay open and some may not.

Finance committee has proposed that temporarily city council exempt all stations from having to close at the hours stipulated in the provincial legislation, so that nocturnal operation will become legal while the situation is studied and the views of the operators considered.

The better course would be for council to pass such a bylaw on a permanent basis, and leave the operators to regulate themselves.

The Brasshats

IT IS A STRANGE assumption that admirals and generals are in a sense "nitwits" and always behind the times in planning their peace-time strategies. People who would not dream of questioning the professional qualities of doctors, engineers, scientists, economists and the like, have no compunction about assuming that service chiefs don't know their business.

Military brass hats have always been fair game for criticism, of course, and it is not improper that this should be so since the defensive policies of a nation are of cardinal public concern. They are public servants. To imply as a generality that they are incompetent scarcely fits the facts.

An NDP candidate in Calgary, for instance, referring in sarcastic vein to "brilliant admirals" says that naval chiefs have "conned" the government into building a naval force that is outdated and ineffective. That is equivalent to saying they are engaged in some sort of confidence game for their own benefit.

There may always be legitimate reason for debating the wisdom of defence planning but there is none for questioning the integrity of high-ranking service officers, which is what comment of this nature does.

These officers have spent their lives in weighing and studying the mores of their profession and it is patently absurd to assume that the advice they give to the government on defence matters is not based impartially on what they believe to be the best interests of the nation. A government may or may not act on such advice—that is its prerogative—but the patriotic intent of service chiefs cannot be challenged.

And it is a pretty reasonable proposition that they are more expert in their knowledge than the average person. They may not all be geniuses but they cannot be dubbed less competent in their own field than the leading figures in other professions.

One seriously doubts that political candidates bent mainly on securing votes on June 18 know more about naval matters than men who have devoted their lives to the business.

Washington Calling

France and Its Nuclear Ambitions

By MARQUE CHILDS

ON the list of magic names such as La Fayette and Rochambeau kindling a vision of the greatness of France, that of Charles de Gaulle will be written large. That much of history is already known. But still in the balance, as viewed from Washington, is whether he will be partner and creator of a new Europe or whether in the last stage of his career he fixes his gaze on the past and tries to take his European allies with him down the road of the old, fierce national rivalries.

On the answer turns the future of a united Europe. The future of the Western alliance and, it may not be too much to say in the era of possible nuclear annihilation, the future of mankind.

France is a country of 212, 659 square miles with a population in 1961 of 45,700,000. These elementary facts mean that France in the nuclear age cannot become one of the three principal Western powers as de Gaulle proposes, nor for that matter one of the two principal powers. The resources in men and money are simply not there.

To encourage the illusion that this can happen is, in the view of top policy-makers here, a profound disservice to France and to the West. This takes in two groups — those Frenchmen who are anti-American and who would like to foment a quarrel and Americans in Paris so steeped in the French viewpoint and who all so worshipfully at the feet of de Gaulle that they respond by championing his every cause and ambition.

They have recently been only too eager to encourage the view that the Kennedy Administration is "anti-de Gaulle" and they cite as proof of this the administration's resolve to keep the nuclear deterrent undivided. If that is possible, and increasingly under the direction and control of the Western alliance.

But they supplement this with the charge that the United States has declined to make non-nuclear elements of future bomber-missile systems available to the French. The answer here is that these elements — medium-range missiles without warheads, tanker planes — could have been obtained if France and two or three other Western allies had been interested in purchasing them.

But when the question of payment arose the matter had an entirely different look.

French sources, with aid from some Americans in official position, have been citing irritants — minor irritants in deed — to try to show that President de Gaulle is turning his face against Washington and toward a mutually exclusive partnership with Germany. Among the pinpricks are the French purchase of Soviet instead of American, coal and French refusal to import frozen American chickens. Under a Franco-Soviet trade agreement the French have long been buying Soviet coal and only recently has an effort been made to introduce American anthracite into the French market.

The French believe they have valid objective reasons for keeping out the chickens — the fact that the American practice is to speed growth by hormone injections which could have a harmful effect on the consumer. These minuscule differences, if in fact they are differences, are set against the towering issue of whether the nuclear deterrent is to be fragmented into several national deterrents. In the words of one policy-maker, it is like setting a sand castle on the beach

Measured in terms of defence against Soviet Russia, the French nuclear force in prospect could only be a threat to all concerned — including the French themselves. No one denies that the French may push their drive to get a national nuclear deterrent even after de Gaulle has left the scene. But the matter of control becomes particularly pertinent at a moment when the secret army in Algeria pushes terror to the brink of civil war, with the seeming inability of the government in Paris to bring it to a halt.

New Global War

Briefcase Battle

By JAMES K. COOPER

JAPAN is engaged in a new global war. Her leaders say she must win, or her people will "eat stones."

Briefcases replace bayonets in this battle. The Japanese invaders now seek new markets for over-expanded industries, faced with regional trade blocks and an American mood to wean her economic program.

Every Japanese knows his country's fortunes are historically tied to trade. Since emerging from feudalism, Japan has become the "England of Asia," importing raw materials and exporting manufactured goods. She has made the most rapid economic advance in modern history.

In the past 10 years, wages have risen 50 per cent, 14 per cent in the last year. The U.S. wage increase over the same period approximates 40 per cent. U.S. dollars saved Japan from starvation after the war and contributed materially to her regaining fourth place among the world's trading nations (after the United States, Russia and West Germany).

U.S. generosity inevitably caused an outflow of gold reserves and American business men and congressmen became alarmed over the effect of Japan's imports on the U.S. market. Some American firms have closed, others are threatened.

But Japan is hurt and feels betrayed because of U.S.

moves to protect its own economy. Both Japan and the U.S. are deficit nations, but the Japanese expect the U.S. to give first consideration to their economic problems. Some Japanese use trade as a weapon of politics and threaten to turn to the Communist bloc if the U.S. fails to underwrite their "big profit" mood. Laissez-faire-minded exporters blame the U.S. and the European Common Market. Even though Japan rejects a responsible political role alongside the United States, she still feels the U.S. has a "moral" obligation to insure her business future.

But the Japanese are earning more, living better and enjoying more leisure and luxuries. Business is booming. Then what is the beef? Economists and government officials say... too much prosperity. Imports far exceed exports. Washington has embarked on a dollar-saving "Buy American" policy. Canada and Britain are concerned over ever increasing Japanese market penetration.

Japanese traders blame their current plight on Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda, who promised to double the national income in 10 years when he took office in 1960. But manufacturers did not question where they would get the added business, nor did they wait for Ikeda to formulate an orderly program.

They rushed pell mell to import machinery and material in anticipation of huge business. New manufacturers sprang up overnight expecting a "gold rush." The government contributed to this expansion through low interest rates and stepped up domestic production. Business expansion, however, was not matched by anticipated increases in exports. Japan's balance of payments worsened. Ikeda now has tightened money and urged the people to slow down. He has restricted indiscriminate borrowing of foreign capital. Both moves are unpopular in a election year. Bankruptcies have increased. In one industrial city they jumped from an average 30 a month to 88. The bankruptcy rate is highest since 1957.

Businessmen say Ikeda's program won't work. But Ikeda is going ahead to raise the discount rate, restrict imports, prohibit a "Buy Japan" move and launch an all-out drive to increase exports.

The moping Owl does to the Moon complain
Of such a wand'ring near her secret Bow'r;

Election Notes

Prairie Prospects

By ARTHUR BLANKLEY

REGINA — The Conservatives seem to be running well ahead of the political pack in the province of Saskatchewan.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker doesn't cut quite as impressive a figure in his home province as he did in the elections of 1957-58 when he was a crusader and a giant-killer all wrapped up in one. He is still, however, a popular figure.

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton, the province's other representative in the federal cabinet, has grown enormously in stature, especially since he exchanged the northern of fair portfolio for that of agriculture.

Some of the government's policies have aroused doubts and irritation. The devaluation of the Canadian dollar is neither liked nor understood.

But in this province, wheat is king. The Saskatchewan farmer, as far as can be determined, is impressed by the government's energetic wheat marketing methods and the disposal of the great surplus which overhung the market for so long.

That much of it has been sold to Communist China arouses not the slightest concern in these parts and is, in fact, applauded.

At the moment when Liberal Leader Lester Pearson was promising the western farmer $2 a bushel for wheat, wheat was selling at $2.05 and $2.06 at Churchill and Vancouver respectively.

In 1958, the Conservatives walked off with 16 of Saskatchewan's 17 seats in the Commons. They lost only in Assiniboia to Mr. Hazen Argue, then a leading member of the CCF but now a convinced Liberal.

Indications are at this stage that they will hold most of their gains.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Hamilton seem safe enough in Prince Albert and Qu'Appelle.

The Liberals don't seem to be able to generate a full head of steam, despite Provincial Liberal Leader Ross Thatcher's gains in his own league. Mr. Pearson is liked and respected but he hasn't yet inspired wild enthusiasm.

The Liberals are looking hopefully at Rosthern and Melville as the ridings most likely to return to the Liberal fold. The fact that Sacred Leader Martin Klein is running in Yorkton and may siphon off votes which otherwise go to Conservative G. D. Clancy has caused them to check this constituency as one with interesting possibilities. A stray Liberal attack on the wheat sales to China may, however, have been costly. In the main, Liberal spokesmen have handled this issue with kid gloves.

The New Democrats have been hurt by the provincial government's war with the doctors and by dissension and desertions. Mr. Argue's charges that the NDP is under the thumb of organized labor have made an impression in farm areas loyal to the old CCF movement which have viewed the new party with suspicion right from the outset.

NDP party workers are organizing for this election looking nervously back over their shoulders, not too sure what revelations may be next.

Despite his personal following and prestige, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas, until lately premier of Saskatchewan, could lose his bid for election in Regina city to Conservative Kenneth More. Mr. More was always been strong, by a hefty margin in 1958. The local Liberals came close to retaining out of the race in Regina, to give More a better chance of upsetting ex-Premier Douglas. They yielded in the end to the entreaties of provincial and national representatives who urged that the step would be regarded as evidence of defeatism. Many Liberals, who still feel that this opportunity to defeat Mr. Douglas should not be neglected, are expected to support the Conservative candidate.

In addition to Regina, where they regard a victory as absolutely essential to their cause, the New Democrats think that they may be able to pick off Assiniboia by trimming defector Hanson Argue; Saskatoon - Biggar, formerly held by ex-CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell and, perhaps, Moose Jaw-Lake Centre. And they, too, have plans for Yorkton.

Social Credit strength in Saskatchewan is, at the moment, an unknown quantity. Indications are that they will field a large slate of candidates. Previous elections have demonstrated that they have a substantial measure of support in two or three Saskatchewan ridings. But the other parties don't regard them as a serious threat this time and won't concede them a single seat.

The Conservatives, incidentally, claim to have an excellent chance of capturing Assiniboia — the only riding they lost in 1958. They have entered a good candidate and believe that many voters, angered by the exchanges following Mr. Argue's defection to the Liberals, will turn from both the NDP and the Liberals to vote Conservative.

No Longer Tough

Camping in Comfort

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP from Paris

THE French camper is no longer a lean, tough eccentric who roughs it in isolation under a tiny, off-white tent blotched with iron mould.

According to a survey of the High Commissioner for Youth and Sports, most of France's estimated 3,600,000 regular campers have a proper regard for creature comfort. They want shops near at hand, and fellow campers around them.

"They seem to fear isolation," the report notes. And it regrets that camping has become an open air substitute for hotels rather than a means of close contact with nature.

The boom in camping-in comfort since the war has resulted in one of the most flourishing minor industries in France. Most campers "go" also motorbikes or at least own motorcycles. They are therefore quite prepared to take everything including a stove on their civilized expeditions. Spacious multi-room tents, usually blue or orange, are available with built-in mosquito nets over the windows.

Camp beds, often with rubber suspension can be turned into easy chairs for daytime relaxation. You can buy small trailers that unfold into complete kitchens, collapsible showers and portable refrigerators.

Crouching around wood fires is out. Folding tables and chairs are standard equipment.

There are over 2,500 officially authorized sites available in France for the self-bred camper, about half of them privately owned, the rest provided by local councils and various clubs and associations.

Theoretically prices are fixed by the authorities and penalties for overcharging are heavy. The sites are slotted into four categories and charges vary accordingly from one NF 50 (30 cents) per person per night in a first class site, down to NF 50 (30 cents) in the lowest category.

The survey states, however, that some private owners over-charge, and many disregard the rule that each tent must have 100 square yards of ground space. Campers themselves fall to complain to the proper authorities, it says, and are themselves partly to blame for overcrowding, especially in seaside camping sites during the summer.

In order to be close to the Mediterranean, it reveals, many campers put up with a fair-ground atmosphere, queue for water and other conveniences, while their cars throng up clouds of dust from the rough tracks. The report from the Riviera says that well-equipped sites only a few miles inland are neglected even at the height of the summer season. French campers obviously do not like to get too far away from it all.

The most popular place for them who really like it rough is Corsica, where the "campers sauvages" (wild campers) who open organized sites outnumber the civilized campers three to one.

Daylight Standard for Voting

OTTAWA (CP) — Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay has announced a ruling which, in effect, recognizes Pacific Daylight Time as Pacific Standard Time for polling hours in British Columbia in the June 18 federal election.

The Canada Elections Act provides that polls open at 8 a.m. and close at 7 p.m., local standard time. In areas where daylight time is in effect, the times are an hour later.

Mr. Castonguay said it has been drawn to his attention an order-in-council of the B.C. government provides that from April 29 to Oct. 28 this year standard time in B.C. will be regarded as seven hours behind Greenwich Mean Time. Pacific Daylight Time is seven hours behind GMT, Pacific Standard eight hours behind.

Mr. Castonguay's ruling is that in view of the B.C. order-in-council, "standard time for purposes of the Canada Elections Act in the province of British Columbia is to be Pacific Standard Time reckoned as seven hours behind Greenwich Time."

Campaign Posters Seized

SASKATOON (CP) — City police Thursday night seized and destroyed election campaign material posted on public property throughout Saskatoon. (Mud Jim Keenan warned party workers Friday it was unlawful to post campaign literature and placards on public utility poles or any public property.)

Capsule in Paris

PARIS (UPI) — The Friendship 7 Mercury capsule that carried John Glenn around the earth will go on exhibition at the Palais de la Decouverte this weekend.

Reform Senate Socred's Call

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson called Friday night for a "common sense" reform of the Senate, including compulsory attendance at half the Senate sittings and appointment by provincial governments of half the senators.

"I don't believe we should get rid of the Senate," Mr. Thompson told a nominating convention for three London-area ridings. "I believe it has a very definite place in parliamentary government, as an arm of government that provides a sort of second thought."

Pearson Promises Seaport to Voters

RIMOUSKI, Que. (CP) — A deep-water seaport, sought for years in this south shore section of the lower St. Lawrence River, was promised Friday by Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson during an afternoon of hop-stop campaigning by air.

He made the promise during a flying visit to Riviere-du-Loup 65 miles upriver from here. A Liberal government would build the port—not just carry out studies on it—in the framework of our regional development program," Mr. Pearson said.

PLEDGES PARTY

He also pledged his party to maintaining year-round navigation to link the north and south shores of the broad lower St. Lawrence here. It would be "not a causeway but a crossway."

Mr. Pearson, arriving at Riviere-du-Loup at noon following a flight in his chartered DC-6B airliner from Yarmouth, N.S., transferred to a smaller DC-3 chartered from Quebecair for hops to Riviere-du-Loup and then back to Rimouski.

GREETED BY PICKETS

Just outside the Riviere-du-Loup airport, his suite cavalcade drove past a group of picketers with signs promoting the deep-sea port idea and winter navigation.

Both requests were covered in his brief speech in French to an audience of 100 at a city hall reception.

'Public Pays For Promises'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association said Friday election promises should be examined in the light of the fact that government expenditures come from private pockets.

Fred Mathers said at the annual dinner of the Junior Achievement Association of British Columbia many persons are advocating more and more state intervention in and regulation of private enterprise.

NOT INCLUDED

The Canadian civil service had grown to 200,000 persons from 50,000 in 25 years, or to one civil servant in 90 of population from one in 200. This did not include 150,000 employees in Crown corporations.

"I think it is absolutely vital Canadians should grasp the implications of such growth and ask themselves whether it is not time that the rate should be slowed, if not arrested altogether."

NARRATIVE PROGRAM

The public did not properly realize the benefits of the private enterprise system nor the function and importance of such aspects of it as profits. A massive educational program was needed.

"The widest possible dissemination of this kind of factual information is our first line of defence against distortions and representations of those who would do away with the system."

Solidarity Meeting

I'm with John D Roberts Insists

CHATHAM (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Premier Robert of Ontario held a solidarity meeting here Friday night on the platform of the Chatham armories.

Mr. Roberts said "if anyone thinks for one moment that I am less than enthusiastic in supporting you and the great campaign which you are waging across this country, I am here tonight to assure you (Mr. Diefenbaker) and then the good people at this meeting that I am with you all the way."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Roberts' presence at the meeting would be disappointing to many.

"His presence means something to the people of Ontario and to the Conservative party of Ontario," the prime minister said.

"His presence spells the unity of our two parties nationally and provincially."

About 1,000 persons attended the public meeting in steaming heat. Some 100 chairs at the

The North Is Big

Indian Voters Hard to Find

EDMONTON (UPI) — Northern Alberta returning officers are having more difficulty enumerating Indians for election purposes than the Indians had obtaining a federal vote.

It was reported Friday. Many Indians apparently are tending traplines, fishing or moving from one constituency to another.

WHEREVER POSSIBLE

Frank Appleby, returning officer for the 65,000-square-mile Athabasca constituency, said he was directed by Ottawa to try to obtain Indian enumerators wherever possible to compile voters' lists on reserves.

Mr. Appleby said he sent out several enumerating kits, but in many cases the men had gone beaver trapping.

NAME A LOAN?

"I think another of them celebrated a bit, fell through a floor and broke his leg," he said. "Maybe he was able to raise a loan on the strength of his job."

Peace River returning officer Thomas Theriault said his election clerk was out all day in a plane trying to complete the list for one constituency's 347 polls.

BE HE ALIVE?

"He's only supposed to be about 85 miles from here," said Mr. Theriault, "but there's no phone or radio. I hope he's still alive."

One Peace River enumerator diligently recorded Indians who later turned out to be just passing through the Athabasca. Their names had to be deleted from the list.

MIXED DOWN

Two voters' lists are mixed with an isolated Northern Alberta Railways crew between McMurray and Lac la Biche. The distance between the two points is 150 miles.

Mr. Appleby expressed pleasure over the fact there have been no apparent mishaps with material delivered to enumerators by plane or dropped at two radar sites by helicopter. Planes have been used in both constituencies to reach wilderness polling areas.

Enumeration throughout the north also has been delayed by a combination of weather conditions and isolation.

"We probably have a few people in the constituency who won't know about the election for a few years, they'll be out trapping until then," Mr. Appleby said.

Meetings Not Calm

John D Attacks 'Slant' of Press

WINDSOR (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Friday that newspaper accounts of Progressive Conservative meetings are "slanted" to make out that they are cool, calm and without enthusiasm.

He made the remark speaking in the Riverside recreation and memorial centre here.

MAJOR PART

The major part of his speech was an attack on Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister and again candidate in Essex East.

Mr. Diefenbaker was speaking in Mr. Martin's riding. A fairly public address system and broiling heat combined to drive away some of the crowd before the prime minister began speaking.

TWO BOWLS

On his arrival at the centre, there were about 1,000 persons on hand, including about 1,000 children who had been waiting for about two hours to see the prime minister.

Mr. Diefenbaker attended a reception in the centre, shaking hands with about 500 persons before his speech. Most of the children left and a few adults also departed because they could not hear clearly.

IT'S A SHAME

"It's a shame," and "it's terrible," were some of the comments in the crowd about the public address system.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that his audience at Charlottetown Thursday night numbered 5,000 in a province with a population of some 100,000. He said the meeting was the biggest in the province's history.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Friday he had every intention of having a roadside meeting with Liberal Leader Pearson in Nova Scotia Wednesday.

But he had been told Mr. Pearson was travelling in a bus. He had stopped when the bus approached only to find that Mr. Pearson had passed him earlier in a fast-traveling car.

WONT ENJOY

He said at a press conference it would be most unfair and unjust of the Liberals to try to accuse him of ducking a meeting with Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Diefenbaker was met on arrival here in 87-degree heat by local Conservative candidates and a gathering of about 25 persons. He flew from Charlottetown in four hours.

The prime minister said his three-day campaign in the Maritimes was "wonderful." Crowds were larger than in the 1957 and 1958 elections, he said.

REPORTED COMMENT

Mr. Worsley spent some time chatting with Mayor Wilson Tuesday afternoon but Mayor Wilson refused comment after the meeting.

It is likely Mr. Worsley's resignation will come before a meeting of city council Thursday. The Council learned yesterday that the resignation is discussed, council may go into secret session.

21 Servants in Militia Parade

Graduation parade Wednesday for the fourth and final special militia training survival course will include 21 civil servants.

The men were granted leave of absence to attend the parade.

Indians Better Off

Not Vanishing But Increasing

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Citizenship Minister Fairclough said Friday that, because of improvements in health and welfare services under the Indian Affairs department, the native Indian is no longer the vanishing American.

She said in an address to the Rotary Club the Indian population is increasing by three per cent a year. There now were 190,000 Indians on reserves compared to fewer than 100,000 in all Canada in 1900.

Mrs. Fairclough said education and integration are needed so the Indians can work side-by-side with other Canadians.

Education was a problem since 50 per cent of the Indian population was under 16 years old.

Fairclough Will Visit Okanagan Indian Band

VERNON (CP) — Minister of Citizenship and Immigration Fairclough will visit and speak with members of the Okanagan Indian band during a brief visit here Saturday.

Mrs. Fairclough will be accompanied by Progressive Conservative MP for Okanagan-Revelstoke, Elsie Fleming, during her trip to the Okanagan Indian Reserve on the shores of Okanagan Lake.

She will also be entertained at a reception by the Okanagan-Revelstoke Progressive Conservative Association before leaving for Regina Sunday.

Mrs. Fairclough is the second cabinet minister to visit Vernon in the current campaign. She was preceded by External Affairs Minister Green last week, and will be followed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker May 21, and Labor Minister Starr June 1.

Some 500 qualified for the training program. Of this number 485 qualified after completing their course, 2,038 joined militia units and more than 580 enlisted in the regular forces.

Bank Rate Plan

Change 'Sure'

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor
It is a near certainty that this summer the Bank of Canada will change its method of calculating the rediscount rate.
The betting in financial circles is that the bank will go back to the old custom of setting the rate and keeping it at that rate until such time as it feels a change—upwards or downwards—is required.
This is in line with the practice in England—where the governors of the Bank of England meet every Thursday to discuss the bank rate among other things, and then announce their decision—up, down, or, usually, unchanged.
For the past few years the Bank of Canada has been operating with a floating rediscount rate. The computation has been made every Thursday by adding 25 per cent to the interest rate the government has to pay that day for its 90 days treasury bills.
This week for instance, the average yield on the 90 days T-bills was 3.36 per cent, so the rediscount rate was automatically 3.61 per cent.
The system was adopted in 1958 so the rediscount rate might be an accurate reflex of the short term money market, but in this it has not worked as well as was anticipated. During the past five years the bank rate has vacillated violently with a high of 6.41 per cent and a low of 1.12 per cent.
During his recent visit to Victoria, G. Arnold Hart, president of the Bank of Montreal, told me he hoped the Bank of Canada would end its present system of computing the rate.
Mr. Hart said the rate should be fixed by the bank or by the government, and not left to float about "at the whim of the money market."
The bank would then be in a position to give a definite signal as to the monetary and economic situation requirements.
It now looks as if Mr. Hart's plea has not fallen on deaf ears, although his opinion may not be the direct cause of the government's change of policy.
It seems more likely that with the present decline of the Canadian dollar, which prompted the pegging of the dollar, the Bank of Canada is hoping to use the short term

Rally from Lows

TORONTO (CP)—Support in the closing hour of trading lifted industrials from their lowest level of the year during extremely light trading.
The index at 2 p.m. had dropped to 327.13, its lowest since last October, but at the market's close, industrials had rallied to 327.94, down almost three points.
Interprovincial Pipe Line fell 1 1/2. Other losses included Abitibi, B.A. Oil, Bell Telephone and Imperial Oil, all down in a 1/2 to 1/4 range.
Among base metals, Hudson Bay Mining dropped 1/2 and Noranda 1/4. International Nickel gained 1/4.
Golds were paced by Kerr-Addison's rise of 40 cents to $9.20.
Western oils saw Calgary and Edmonton gain 1/4, while Great Plains Development dropped 1/4, and Home B and Pacific Petroleum 1/4 each.

Outlook Better

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market staged a last-hour rally and edged into the plus column by a narrow margin.
The market struggled mightily throughout the day to make some progress in the face of weak trading volume. Prices were on the decline at the start and turned mixed before making their upward move.
Advances of most key stocks were mostly restricted to fractions.
Rubbers, utilities, chemicals, rails and oils gained. Motors were mixed. Steels, aircrafts, nonferrous metals, airlines and tobacco were down 1/4 to 1/2.
Brokers said the late strength could be attributed in part to the market taking notice of favorable new-business statistics and optimistic statements about the outlook for the U.S. economy.

McKinney Features

VANCOUVER—McKinney Gold continued its upward flight closing at a new high of 1.04 with over 300,000 shares trading. New Indian Mines also rose sharply to 48 with over 200,000 shares trading.
The remainder of the mining market was mixed with Bethlehem rallying to 2.41.
Oils showed an upward trend while most industrials eased.

Decline in Bonds

MONTEAL (CP)—Bond prices dropped sharply, spurred by a lowering in its price support level by the bank of Canada. Traders also reported an absence of expected U.S. buying helped force prices down.
Long-term Canadas were down 1/4 in brisk trading, while short-term Canadas lost 10 to 15 cents. Provincial issues fell 1/4 to 1/2 in moderate trading, with the more recent issues being the hardest hit. Corporate issues were 1/4 lower in quiet trading.

SPLIT PROPOSED

A three-for-one split in the common shares of Ontario Steel Products Co. has been proposed by the directors. The company plans to pay 12 cents a share in quarterly dividends on the new stock. The new rate is equivalent to $1.44 on the present stock which now pays $1.40.

Esquimalt Woman Slain in Toronto

TORONTO (UPI) — James Murphy, 35, has been charged with manslaughter in connection with the death early yesterday of Mrs. Margaret MacIver, of Esquimalt, B.C., a 28-year-old receptionist.

Police said Mrs. MacIver was drowned before being put on her blood-soaked bed this morning in a Toronto rooming house.

An autopsy report showed the woman was not beaten to death as first believed. However, two superficial cuts on her head were still unexplained, police said.

Murphy, who notified police of the woman's death, had been questioned by police all day.

Inspector William McNulty said Murphy told police he had found Mrs. MacIver in a semi-conscious condition and tried to revive her by placing the woman was not beaten to her head under the tap.

Victim's Husband:

He Never Heard Of Lovers' Diary

VANCOUVER (CP) — The husband of 19-year-old Mrs. Janita Reinhardt who was fatally stabbed early Wednesday on an East Side street said Friday night he knows nothing of a diary in which she is said to have written the names of many men in her life.

Helmut Reinhardt, 26, told reporters during a recess in the inquest into his wife's death he has never heard of the book.

DANGER OF LIFE

He said a 17-year-old girlfriend of his wife, who earlier told of the diary, may be in danger of her life. He said she is probably known to his wife's killer.

The girlfriend told newspapermen about the diary but asked that her name not be disclosed. Police confirmed that a diary exists but said it was not in Vancouver at the time Mrs. Reinhardt was killed. They declined to say what the book contains.

IDENTIFIES BODY

Mr. Reinhardt identified the body to the jury. He described his wife as "a young, vital person" who "wasn't afraid of anything."

The jury returned a verdict of homicide by a person unknown.

Pathologist Dr. T. R. Harmon testified Mrs. Reinhardt was stabbed with a thin blade

Justice Won't Say

VANCOUVER (CP) — A court case involving the British Columbia Power Corporation and the B.C. government ended its third week Friday after Chief Justice Sherwood Lett refused to say whether the B.C. Electric Company is still alive.

The power corporation is seeking to have the supreme court declare that government legislation taking over the B.C. Electric is invalid.

Garden Notes

Come on Shop Tour

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I think today it is about time you and I went on a shopping expedition to buy the bedding plants for setting out in the flower beds around the front of the house.

You'll find there are several different ways in which you can buy these plants. If you need two dozen petunias and a dozen Sweet Alyssum for edging, the proprietor of the garden shop or stall will dig them out of the shallow box or "seed flat" in which they are growing, and will wrap them in several layers of newspaper for you to carry home. Or, if you can use five or six dozen plants all the same kind, he will sell you a whole flatful, box and all, to carry away.

Some dealers are offering their plants in smaller boxes or containers of soil, containing eight to a dozen plants. Some kinds which resent root disturbance, such as cucumbers and squash, are often sold in individual containers which may be wood veneer bands or the fibre consumable plant pots. Some of the more expensive kinds, like geraniums and dracaenas, are sold in the conventional clay pots.

However you buy your plants, the keynote to successful planting lies in handling the plants with an absolute minimum of root disturbance. The greatest risk lies in the dozen plants purchased out of the flat, and while these should grow away nicely if handled with gentle fingers, you can't just throw the newspaper-wrapped parcel in the back of the car and forget about it until the spirit moves you to plant them out. These plants have suffered a severe shock when uprooted from their box of soil, and your job is to get them back into the bosom of Mother Earth and on the road to recovery as quickly as possible.

There isn't any such rush when you buy a whole box of plants, for as yet they haven't suffered any root disturbance, but don't leave these for long in the trunk of your car with the sun blazing down. Get them into a cool, shady place and water them daily until planted out.

Getting them out of the box and into the ground poses a few problems too. Plants suffer in transplanting from something similar to surgical shock, caused by the inevitable tearing away of the fine, invisible root hairs through which they take in their water and food. The trick here is to lift them and repoint them in their planting hole with as little damage to these root hairs as possible.

Rather than scooping the plants out with a dull trowel, I find it pays to pry off one side of the box so I can insert the flat blade of an old dinner knife under each plant to lift it. My own flats are made with wood screws instead of nails to facilitate the taking off of the side panel.

I score the soil with a sharp knife, just like cutting up a pan of gingerbread or Johnny cake. The squares of soil can then be lifted out on the blade of my dinner knife with very little damage to the tiny root hairs.

Veneer plant bands and fibre pots can be set into the soil just as they are, where they will rot away in time. A little liquid fertilizer poured in while planting will speed up the process of decomposition.

Leisure, Talk at Sidewalk

Washington has been called a city of southern efficiency and northern charm (most recently by President Kennedy who attributed it to, some-one else) but this is rapidly becoming both untrue and unfair. Washington pulses with culture, or at least with talk of it, which is usually the prelude to the real McCoy, and it's just possible the nation's capital may in our lifetime stop being such a one-industry town.

Of course, we all know about the parties at the White House—all those Nobel Prize winners and authors and composers and deep thinkers (and a very fine and ennobling thing it is for that edifice to house all that creative fire) but it's encouraging to discover the cultural bug has filtered down to common folk, the lower levels, where conceivably it may take more permanent root. (The White House could, after all, revert to Lawrence Welk in 1968.)

The young officeholders and their pretty young wives are brimful of talk and plans about the arts and literature. First, of course, they apologize. ("We haven't anything like what you have in New York, of course, the museums, the concerts.") But then you discover while this is true, the young marrieds seem to be up to their ears in whatever museums and concerts there are with far more zest and, above all, more regular attendance than your New York friends. (I mean the stuff's all around, all right, but when did you go look at it last?)

Washington was a town where they pulled in the sidewalks at night. You went to private parties or you stayed home. Now it has the tiny beginnings of night life. Washington now has The Premise, the revue of topical political satire with the same cast that ran in Greenwich Village for years, and it also has its own home-grown show of the same nature at The Captain's Table, called the Uniquicorn.

After The Premise I find it a bit amateur, but it has some inspired moments and its heart is in the right place. One song, Suburban Lullaby, which may be the most sophisticated lullaby ever sung to small babies, is almost worth the trip alone. Then there's Twilio, where opera singers sing Madam Butterfly and Porgy and Bess at you, which is a lot of fun.

Around the corner from the National Press Building is that celebrated sidewalk cafe, Bassin's, which caused such a rumble when its owners asked for a licence. The arguments against it were fairly hilarious. It would, its opponents said, attract streetwalkers and drinkers and other bad 'uns but actually it attracts mostly tourists. Some of the foreign embassy people stop there and it's very pleasant on a spring day to sit and eat a steak sandwich (the civic regulations won't allow even a beer out there) and watch the world go by. Since it's on the corner of 14th and Pennsylvania, everyone from John Glenn to Bobby Kennedy eventually passes by.

Washington now has two sidewalk cafes—the other one's called Chez Francois and it's very French—and I hope there'll be many more. No city is more suited to sidewalk cafes. It has lovely sidewalks. It has good conversation. It has leisure. All it needs is a smidgin of sense in its liquor laws.

Russian Roulette Goes On

LONDON (NANA)—The ending to the Elizabeth Taylor-Richard Burton idyll has still to be written—professionally and personally. Cleopatra director Joe Mankiewicz is still banging away at the typewriter for the movie's last scene, where Elizabeth plays "Russian roulette" with a snake. And no one knows what will happen next, if not before, when Elizabeth completes her role in Cleo. Will she stay in Rome to be near Richard, who still has eight more weeks or so of work in the costly movie? Or will she trot off peacefully to her villa in Switzerland? My educated guess is Liz will remain in Rome and that we haven't heard the last of the Taylor-Burton fireworks.

Charlie Chaplin will be racing the stork when he dashes to Oxford to pick up his honorary degree June 27, and then back here and possibly on to the continent. Wife Oona, in Switzerland, is expecting their eighth child about the same time.

Producer Sam Bronston is flying 300 Chinese men, women and children from London to Madrid for his 55 Days at Peking movie. . . . Some of the survivors of the Boxer rebellion in Peking—Circa 1900—are still alive and they include a 95-year-old Mrs. Ker, whose baby died during the siege, being unable to stomach the only food available—pony soup.

A funny thing happened to me on the way to lunch with director Terence Young at the Connaught Hotel. I bumped into David Susskind. "What are you doing here?" we both exclaimed. Susskind is in London to tape Hedda Gabler with Ingrid Bergman, Sir Ralph Richardson, Sir Michael Redgrave and plain Mister Trevor Howard. The stars involved find it more convenient to work in London at this time, and this is the new pattern—the producers go where the stars prefer to work.

Ursula Andress, in private life Mrs. John Derek, had an unusual experience the other night. She was at the Trevor Howard play, Two Stars for Comfort, when she thought someone's feet were on her long hair. She turned in her seat to say something sharp, then smiled instead. Prince Philip, with Queen Elizabeth, in the row behind, had inadvertently brushed his knees against her lengthy tresses. Ursula has just completed her starring role with Sean Connery as James Bond in Ian Fleming's Dr. No.

Back from India is Sy Weintraub and his completed Tarzan Goes to India, which opens in the United States July 4. Tarzan Jack Mahoney's 17-year-old princess was overweight for the jungle classic and during-supper in the Savoy Grill Sy told me, "I made her lose 25 pounds in 35 days. In India, the people are so undernourished that you can't be a film star unless you are in the Hattie McDaniel class. A fat woman is the ideal beauty image."

Art Pioneer Fine Painter

Will Menelaws deserves all the accolade generally given to pioneers of note.

For almost 50 years he has devoted himself to guiding and training the young people of Victoria in art. Always ready to give help and encouragement, his studio has been a meeting place for all who wanted to come along and draw or paint.

Mr. Menelaws is a Scot, trained in the schools of the Royal Scottish Academy in Edinburgh, where in 1903 he was awarded the Keith Prize for the best work by a student attending the life classes of the schools.

Portrait in oils of his sister Miss Mary Menelaws—which won this prize—to realize why. There is some lovely painting in it.

Another portrait study, this time of another sister Mrs. John Muir, runs it a close second.

The two portraits are the most commanding items of the present exhibition, but many people will like The Little Balerina which was painted in 1935.

This is in a different style, lighter and gayer in color and freer in composition.

There is no doubt that Mr. Menelaws is, above everything, a portrait painter, and there are, as well as the numerous oils, some fine studies in charcoal of which I find The Paratrooper the most important, though A Reverend Gentleman, drawn in 1950, is no mean achievement.

Some of the landscapes in oils I find a little dry, but this is not the case with the water colors.

Inner Harbor, Japanese Training Ship and Abandoned show fine draughtsmanship without losing the freshness of the washes. But I like A Street in Tacoma better; it is a more limpid painting.

The charcoal drawing of an oak tree shows the thoroughness of an experienced artist when working out of doors.

Lack of Evidence Frees One Suspect

John N. L. Smith was discharged for lack of evidence after a preliminary hearing in city magistrate's court on a charge of breaking and entering and theft.

William Stefansson, charged with him, was remanded until Wednesday.

The charges arise out of the alleged breaking and entering of Fairfield Jewellery, and theft of a quantity of goods, including watches and costume jewelry, April 9.

FACE CHARGES

Both men also face charges of possession of stolen goods. Some of the goods from Fairfield Jewellery had been found in an apartment at 451 Superior Street, occupied at one time by Grant Hunter.

Evidence showed Smith at one time had paid the rent on the apartment.

NO EVIDENCE

However, said the magistrate, "there was not one word of evidence that Smith at any time had lived in the premises or had ever lived on the premises."

"Although there may be a substantial body of suspicion centring upon him, he has not been tied up to this affair."

New charges have been laid against two men for the $20,000 robbery of a safe at the Don Mee Co., 536 Figgard, last Jan. 15.

Marion Miller, 34, of Vancouver, appeared in city magistrate's court yesterday and was remanded until Wednesday.

ALSO CHARGED

Also charged is Francis Chan, Miller and Chan have already faced a breaking and entering charge, but the magistrate discharged them for lack of evidence after a preliminary hearing.

Leonard G. Bell, charged with them the first time, is now serving a prelatentary term.

SAME OFFENCE

New charges are sometimes laid for the same offence if the Crown feels new evidence can be introduced.

Don Mee's, scene of the Jan. 15 robbery, was an unofficial Chinatown bank, where businessmen left their money for safe keeping.

Between $3,000 and $4,000 of the loot was recovered.

Doctored-Up Drums

There's Steel in This Band

Those steel drums the Trinidad Moonlighters use to make hot Calypso and Latin-American music at the Jaycee-Colonial Outdoors Show in the Curling Rink, three times a day, are really just 45-gallon oil drums, doctored up a little.

They are a development from the carnival spirit of Trinidad and Tobago. "Rhythm is a way of life in Trinidad. Everybody picks up a stick and starts tapping. Steel bands just naturally developed from one note on a drum, to up to 26 notes on a steel drum," explained John Donaldson, who sings, limbo dances and plays the bass and bongos.

TWO BANDS
"This is our music... You go to a dance in Trinidad and they have two bands, one of them a steel band."

Steel band music started developing in Trinidad in the early 1940s.

The instruments are made from ordinary oil drums. The tops are heated and beaten into concave shape. Then the notes are hammered out with a hammer and nail.

The drums are cut according to the kind of music desired.

BASS DRUMS
The deepest drums, almost the full length of a 45-gallon drum, are bass instruments and some play only one note. That means a man plays four drums to get four notes. The shallow drums play the melody and have up to 26 notes marked out on them. Intermediate-depth drums carry chords and some melody.

TRINIDAD MOONLIGHTERS AND OIL DRUMS.

They tune the drums with a hammer and nail, knocking the drum face in or out until they get the right note and tone.

BONGOS, MARACHAS
Bongos and marachas make up the rest of the band music. The Trinidad Moonlighters steel band members playing at the Curling Rink have made their own instruments, but the ones they are playing at the fair were brought from Trinidad.

They can play anything on them, from classical music, through Calypso and Latin American, to jazz.

PLAY FOR FUN
"We play for fun, more than anything else," said Mr. Donaldson, who is a law student at UBC.

All seven band members are UBC students, who were friends and schoolmates in Trinidad.

Now they meet every Sunday for practice at the home of Wilson Wong Moon, who plans to make Canada his home.

Other band members include Lawford Dupres, who is studying ing engineering and has made two tours of Canada and the United States with a steel band; Denzil Jones, who is taking an Arts course; Aga Khan, who is specializing in bio-chemistry; Allan Jagdeo, who is taking an Arts course, and Lorris Elliott, who is an English honors student and may teach at UBC this year.

Denzil Jones is the main limbo dancer with the troupe, but they all sing and dance a little.

Employment Record In Sight

If present employment trends continue for another two weeks, the Victoria office of the National Employment Service may well set a record for the city.

A total of 564 job placements have been made in the first two weeks of May, 307 for men and 255 for women.

NES officials feel the trend emphasizes the "increasing shortage of skilled workers in a variety of occupations."

A shortage of skilled help appears to be developing in shipyard trades such as machinists, aluminum welders, ship's platers, shipyard welders, wood shipwrights for small boat work, architects and architectural draughtsmen.

In women's job opportunities, there is an increasing demand for domestic help.

Another field of temporary employment soon to open will be for berry pickers.

New Threat to Sunday Industry Moving In, Churchman Warns

Attempts by industry to "move in on Sunday" are going to increase, Dr. A. S. McGrath, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada, warned yesterday.

He told the B.C. conference of the United Church of Canada meeting in First United Church that industry explains its actions by saying Sunday work allows men to earn higher wages.

"But there are some values higher than what can be measured in money," he said. "We have to decide how we are going to live and on what values we want to run our lives." Dr. McGrath was explaining the work done by the Lord's Day Alliance.

Official Denies Report Of 'Jackpot' Probe

Deputy attorney-general Dr. Gilbert Kennedy last night denied a report his department had been studying the legality of the $1,000 night door prize offered at the Jaycee fair.

He said there was no truth in a news report in another

"Our job is basically one of communication," he said. "We are seeking to give the Canadian people a better understanding of the values at stake (in the observance of Sunday)." The Alliance tries to point out to employers their responsibilities when employing men on Sundays.

Dr. McGrath explained reasons for a brief submitted to Prime Minister Diefenbaker requesting changes in the Lord's Day Act.

He said his group had been thinking about modernizing the Act since 1958.

The brief represents a willingness by the Lord's Day Alliance to accept change while at the same time remaining firm in its convictions.

Fire Chief Boosts Street Name Plea

Saanich fire chief Joseph Law yesterday threw his support behind Victoria postmaster A. M. Davies in a plea for elimination of duplication of street names in the Greater Victoria area.

Postmaster Davies in a letter to city council urged Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils should get together to eliminate the confusing situation.

He suggested such a step would aid police and firemen when emergencies arise.

Chief Law said "duplication of the names and sounds of streets within the city and the municipalities can be confusing to the various emergency departments."

"Obviously the duplication could mean an error, and errors in the fire department could mean the loss of life," The Saanich fire chief said he hopes the authorities, being informed of the situation, "will take the necessary action."

Law Demands Set Hour

Service Station Closing May Raise Fierce Battle

Hydro Post

Victorian Gordon J. A. Kidd has assumed position of Columbia co-ordinator, B.C. Hydro and Power Authority. University of Saskatchewan engineering graduate, Mr. Kidd has spent past eight years in Columbia River studies. He succeeds Garth Griffiths, recently appointed associate manager, staff services division of the Authority.

Controversy appears likely to develop among city service station operators over the question of closing hours.

A meeting of city finance committee this week was told that recent provincial legislation required all service stations to close at set hours unless the municipality concerned passes an exemption bylaw.

ADOPT BYLAW

As an interim measure, the finance committee recommended to council that it adopt a bylaw permitting 24-hour operation of service stations.

Under the new legislation, service stations must close at 7 p.m. in the winter and 9 p.m. in the summer, the meeting was told.

"This will give us a chance to study the desires of the industry," Mayor R. B. Wilson commented.

Some two years ago opposing factions among service station operators clashed before city council over the question and council decided to allow stations to stay open any hours they wished.

False Pretences

'Rebellious' Girl Jailed for a Day

Jennifer Lloyd-Jones, 18, of Richmond, B.C. was bound over in the sum of $250 for one year in city police court this week for obtaining goods by false pretences.

On a second false pretences charge, Magistrate William Officer sentenced her to one day in jail.

Miss Lloyd-Jones pleaded guilty to obtaining goods from the T. Eaton Co. by using the credit card of Mrs. Mary Stead May 1 and 2.

"Your parents certainly have done everything for you they could," the magistrate said.

"You've had many more educational and cultural advantages than the average young person . . . You have rejected these advantages, and rejected the advice your parents gave you.

"I can assure you that this rebellious and headstrong conduct will land you in real trouble if you keep on the way you have been doing."

Court learned Miss Lloyd-Jones' parents are going to pay for her to take a course at business college.

Glen Lake Teen-Ager

Crime Wave Admitted

A Glen Lake teen-ager has pleaded guilty to causing a one-man wave of minor crime in three districts.

Awaiting sentence Thursday on charges of breaking and entering and theft and taking an automobile without the owner's consent is Raymond Peter Sweeney, 18, Happy Valley Road.

THREE SAWS

He pleaded guilty in Colwood magistrate's court yesterday to breaking and entering Langford Building Supply six weeks ago and stealing two power saws and a Skill saw.

He pleaded guilty in Saanich court Thursday to theft of a portable radio and taking a car without the owner's consent.

SHOP CENTRE

In Sooke magistrate's court he pleaded guilty Tuesday to breaking and entering Gibson's Shopping Centre in Sooke and stealing clothing April 10.

On all charges he is to be sentenced Thursday.

For breaking and entering and theft at Gibson's, John Turnbull, 18, and Richard Heimbecker, 16, have already been sentenced to nine months detention and nine months' indefinite imprisonment.

SAME CHARGE

Gerald Haldane, 18, is to be sentenced Thursday on the same charge. All pleaded guilty.

Kenneth Willman was given a two-year suspended sentence and required to post a $250 bond when he was convicted of receiving goods stolen from Gibson's.

A passerby, Stefano Croce, who played no part in the robbery but found some of the Gibson's clothing behind some bushes and stored it in his car, was fined $250 and sentenced to one day's imprisonment. The charge—possession of stolen goods.

Handicapped See Hope In New Plant

A new Goodwill Enterprises plant to meet the need of handicapped people on Vancouver Island will commence operation by 1964, manager George Gray told Victoria Rotary Club Thursday.

The plant would operate a job assessment training scheme to tie in with the provincial government program for the handicapped.

Mr. Gray said the building fund which Goodwill is trying to accumulate for the project was greatly helped by the Rotary Klondike Night held aboard the Princess Marguerite.

"We gained another $5,500 from that project," he said. During 1961, Goodwill employed a total of 162 handicapped persons, adding 36 new workers to the staff.

Artful Dodger

HALIFAX (CP)—A Vancouver woman who died last month has bequeathed $25,000 to the Nova Scotia College of Art here—just for any new-fangled painting.

Miss Effie May Ross said in her will the money was to be used for scholarships for three students from the Atlantic provinces.

But not to encourage "futuristic, surrealist, cubist, impressionist, abstract or commercial designs."

Police Shift Search

EDMONTON (CP)—City police, working on evidence obtained from a Calgary woman, have shifted the search for the body of missing Edmonton golfer professional Frank Willey to the Leduc area, 20 miles south of here.

Willey, formerly of Vancouver, disappeared April 13. Two men, Raymond Daniel Workman, 44, and William (Headball) Huculak, 29, have been charged with capital murder in connection with Willey's disappearance. They are scheduled to appear for preliminary hearing May 24.

Police switched the search location from the Leduc and Tofield districts, about 30 to 50 miles southeast of here, to Leduc after detectives interviewed a woman in her early 20s in Calgary.

A search of graveyards in the area is also being conducted on the theory that Willey's body has been buried in a shallow grave.

Airline To Gain By Boost

MONTREAL (CP)—G. R. McGregor, president of Trans-Canada Air Lines, says new airline fares appear to make it "quite certain" that TCA won't lose as much money in 1962 as it did last year.

But he was critical of the difference in fares on identical routes flown by TCA and Canadian Pacific Airlines, calling it a "ridiculous situation."

Writing in the company's staff magazine, Mr. McGregor said the Air Transport Board earlier this year had allowed TCA to set a new fare structure while doing nothing to alter the 1950 fares which CPA has retained.

New Fares Deferred

OTTAWA (CP)—Increased air fares out of Canada, originally announced for June 1, will not take effect at that time, a spokesman for the Air Transport Board said yesterday.

The International Air Transport Association announced the increased fares earlier this week—reflecting the new value of the Canadian dollar. The increased fares would apply to all trans-ocean flights out of Canada.

25,000,000 Years?

Old Bones Of Mammal Discovered

By IAN STREET

Fossilized bones of a large marine mammal which probably died more than 25,000,000 years ago have been recovered from the area of Carmanah Point on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Dr. Clifford Carl of the provincial museum, who brought the specimens back from a recent trip to the area, said yesterday he will send them to the national museum in Ottawa for positive identification.

"I am sticking my neck out when I say these are not the bones of a reptile, but those of a large marine mammal," said Dr. Carl. It could be an ancient form of whale, now extinct.

DEEPLY DIGGING

He hopes the director of the national museum, Dr. L. S. Russell, a leading paleontologist who has come to B.C. previously in search of specimens, will personally direct digging operations for the remainder of the season. It has been embedded in mudstone at about the half-tide mark on a remote bay south of the lighthouse at Carmanah Point. The discovery was first made by Peter Williams of Victoria, a crewman aboard a mission ship, in the summer of 1961.

SCATTERED PARTS

Francis Shepherd, a geologist with the B.C. department of mines, accompanied Dr. Carl to the site where fossilized fragments of vertebrae were scattered over an area roughly 25 feet by 12 feet.

Another group of fossil remains was found about 200 feet away from the first one. The largest bone found appears to be a rib and is about 40 inches long. This would indicate the mammal was at least eight feet long through the body.

Its length is estimated to have been about 30 feet.

42,000,000 YEARS

Mr. Shepherd said the mudstone deposits on the beach which contain the fossils belong to the oligocene period and are between 25,000,000 and 40,000,000 years old.

Overlying the mudstone is a conglomerate layer and a further sandstone layer which forms the cliffs above the beach today. The geologist said this indicates the whole coastline was raised, possibly 15,000,000 years ago, and the bottom sandstone layer exposed by continuous erosion.

FEAR ANATOMIES

The site can only be reached by boat or helicopter. Museum officials, nevertheless, are somewhat concerned at the possibility some "amateur rockhounds" might attempt to dig up the fossilized remains before they can be studied.

Becher Bay Boat Remains Mystery

The mystery of a broken-up 18-foot outboard boat found on the beach between Mary Hill and the entrance to Becher Bay May 15 is still unsolved.

The shattered boat bore the words "... skis" and "WN" on its stern and "White's Cove" on its port side.

Reports from RCMP at Sooke have been relayed to the United States Coast Guard, but there has been no identification.

HMS BELFAST SLIDES PAST DUNTZE HEAD INTO ESQUIMALT HARBOR

Cruiser Came Early

City Hails Belfast Men Pile Ashore

Victorians opened their hearts and their city yesterday to welcome HMC Belfast, a Royal Navy cruiser, and her crew of 847 officers and men.

By mid-afternoon more than 500 men had left on weekend leave to stay with Victoria residents who offered their hospitality, and many others were staying with friends and relatives.

Due at Naden at 9 a.m., the Belfast arrived 45 minutes early and threw RCN arrangements out. But despite the short notice, a "reduced" 1200 Naden band of 15 men was in place on the government dock to welcome the British ship.

BIGGEST CRUISE

Biggest cruiser in the Royal Navy, the 15,000-ton Belfast, with its lattice masts like TV towers, dwarfed the weathered ships St. Catharines and St. Stephen which were also tied up at the dock.

Along with her crew, the ship carries a number of "officials" and "unofficials," her captain, Capt. Morgan Giles, explained yesterday.

As part of a 100-year-old RN tradition, ships operating in the Far East and Indian waters sign on some natives as stewards and mess boys. These are the "officials."

The "unofficials" are native tailors, bootmakers, barbers and laundry boys who set up shop on the ship and serve the crew.

"Unofficials" are often carried to England on the ship and then transfer to another RN ship on its way back. Capt. Giles said one "official" and one "unofficial" were involved in the attempt to smuggle narcotics on the Belfast recently. The drug haul was discovered in the traditional drug search carried out when a British ship leaves an Orient port.

The Belfast will be open to visitors between 1:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. today as part of the RCN Pacific Command's Navy Day program.

Full Support for Harbord

City Community Chest Revives with a Bang

Wallace Attacks Firms, Budgets

Greater Victoria's almost-defunct Community Chest revived with a bang yesterday.

A full meeting of directors voted unanimously to go ahead with the 1962-63 drive under the chairmanship of Justice Harbord. The vote came after a fact-of-life report by president George Gregory which showed:

- Only 50 per cent of the larger Chest donors would go on record in support of the Community Chest's United Appeal to the exclusion of all other charities.

- Press and radio could not make a "Chest only" commitment of support.

- Some segments of the public greeted the news of the possible dissolution of the Community Chest's United Appeal with relief.

But directors voted to withdraw a previous motion to disband.

The meeting also heard straight-from-the-shoulder criticisms from John Wallace, general manager at Yarrow, who said some companies, his own included, had failed to match increased employee giving in last year's drive.

Mr. Wallace also said the Chest must take a "firm stand" in maintaining discipline over the budgets of the 22 agencies.

He said the common practice of whittling down agency demands each year had reverted to "bargaining" sessions, with agencies adding 20 per cent as a "throw-away" in bargaining.

'But Magnificent'

Directors pledged themselves to give "100 per cent support" to three-time campaign chairman Harbord.

"When I asked him to take the job, I added that he would be crazy if he did," reported Mayor R. B. Wilson. "He's crazy—but magnificent."

The mayor said dissolution of the Chest would be "a tragedy for all the people who have counted on it for help for years."

He found a parallel between the problems of the Chest and the question of amalgamation. But those problems won't be solved by "closing city hall" and disbanding police and fire departments with the hope the municipalities will appeal for merger.

Volunteer Harbord, in a letter, said he had carefully weighed the outcome of the move to disband the Chest in the hope of creating a truly United Appeal by public demand.

Such a move would bring nationwide bad publicity to Victoria, and in the event that the public failed to ask for a United Appeal, Greater Victoria would be faced with a large number of separate campaigns next year.

He had initially favored dissolution in the hope it would act as the shock treatment needed for true unification of charity drives under one heading.

Only Half Agreed

Mr. Gregory said he had canvassed 20 larger donors to see if they favored excluding all other charities but only 50 per cent agreed.

"The biggest corporate giver—which is also within an ace of being the largest payroll donor—declared emphatically against such a proposal," he said.

Mr. Wallace urged letters be sent to companies which had failed to match the increased donations in employee giving. He said his own company intended to increase its donation.

"But we cannot side with any attempt to push (other agencies) into the United Appeal. That is something that will come about only when we manage to surpass our quota and prove to these outside agencies the value of membership."

In urging greater pooling of agency budgets, he said tighter budget controls would tend to increase the "self reliance" of those receiving help. "People are more inclined to lean on the agencies if they know they have plenty of money."

Mr. Wallace said directors should enter the campaign with no thought of "changing the apathy and indifference of the public."

"We have made our point and now have our own responsibility to the community, no matter what anyone thinks."

Mr. Harbord set May 25 as the date for the first campaign meeting. Next year the drive will be under the direction of John A. Wallace and J. Alan Baker. In 1964 Hugh Stephen and Donald J. Lawson will share the job and Herschel A. Smith has volunteered for 1965.

Two City Firms Pay Tax Fines

British Welding Co. Ltd. and Chong Timber Co. Ltd., both of Victoria, paid a $25 fine each in city magistrate's court for failing to file 1960 income tax returns.

To Present Colors

Vanier Visit Scheduled Wednesday

Governor General Vanier will arrive at Victoria Airport at 2:00 p.m. Wednesday and attend a private dinner at Government House that evening. He will remain at Government House Thursday, when his only official engagement will be an evening dinner there.

Friday afternoon will be spent at the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, where he will present the Queen's color and the college color. The Governor General will also address the graduating class and attend a tea with senior members of the faculty and guests.

He leaves Victoria in his RCAF Comet aircraft at 10 a.m. Saturday for Calgary.

Water Skiers Due at 11

Led by members of the Victoria Aqua Ski Club, 22 Port Angeles water skiers will glide into the Inner Harbor at 11 a.m. today after the 18-mile trip across the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

The party has a three-fold purpose in skiing across the strait:

- To carry greetings from Port Angeles to Victoria—both cities are celebrating their centennaries;
- To invite Victoria residents to visit Port Angeles to take part in that city's celebrations;
- To visit the Victoria centennial exhibition.

The skiers will leave Port Angeles at 10 a.m. and expect to make the trip in an hour. They will leave Victoria again from the Inner Harbor at 4 p.m.

Seen in Passing

City painter Jack Armour recently has collected Justice Harbord's traffic sign. (Jack and wife Miriam live at 328 Goldstream, close enough to nature to satisfy Jack, an ardent hunter) ... Dave Lawson proposing a motion ... Becker a newspaper ... Alexander citing statistics ... hurrying down Douglas Street.

Thanks for Memories Of All Things to Come

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

ADVANCE WARNING: City lawyer David Hummel made a short speech of introduction for Liberal candidate Thomas Foster Iaherwood at an election meeting in Monterey School the other day.

Mr. Iaherwood dashed off a nice little note to Mr. Hummel, thanking him for his great speech.

It lost some of its effect when it was delivered three or four hours before Mr. Hummel spoke!

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: They say that if any of the crew aboard the replica of HMS Bounty suffers from seasickness the complaint is listed as Mal de Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer!

IN OUR FACE CITY: Craftiest thing I've heard for a long time concerns the midlife killing of a six-month-old Pekinese pup in the Gorge area. The dog had a wire nose put over its neck, was put on the branch of a tree then pushed off. The pup strangled to death.

Perpetrator of this vicious act is reportedly a six-year-old in the neighborhood. Maybe it could be argued that he was young enough not to know what he was doing.

But one wonders about the parents of the boy who, I am told, asked out the "vicious" punishment of sending him to his room for a while.

BADGE OF HONOR: Two young air cadets walking up town after the IODE Victoria Day ceremony at the legislature yesterday were making conversation.

"Say," said one. "How many guys joined in your unit?"

BOUNTY HUNTER: As thanks for his efforts in getting the replica of HMS Bounty here next month, Premier Bennett and "Madame Bennett" in the words of MGM publicity man Ivan Boushies—will be invited to the world premiere of the Marlon Brando movie in New York in the fall.

STREET SEEN: Spy reports spotting two scruffy-dressed characters walking along Government Street yesterday with one making a big production of brushing his hair from the back of a filthy, lopsided jacket worn by the other.

GATHERING OF THE CLAN: Descendants of the Selkirk settlers who first arrived in Manitoba 150 years ago will stage their own local get-together to celebrate the event in Victoria next week.

There are about 20 odd descendants of the settlers now living here.

They will meet at the home of Dr. Roy Sutherland, Rockland Avenue, from 2 to 5 p.m. Thursday. If any descendants of the original settlers have been missed they can get an invitation by phoning EV 4-2252.

NEAREST THING OF THE WEEK: Historian James E. Nesbitt, speaking to city schoolchildren at the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire Victoria Day ceremony yesterday, still managed to get in a solid pro-American plug.

And the IODE members never even batted an eye—as if that was it done!

NOTES TO YOU: The Victoria Day parade organizers have been drugged with requests from the various political parties wanting to enter floats in this parade. They've all been turned down.

Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Hirst, 2711 Dufferin Street, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Elaine Anita to Mr. Geoffrey Castle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Castle. The wedding will take place on Saturday, June 9 at 2.30 p.m. at St. Luke's Church with the Rev. T. D. B. Ragg officiating.

Fireman's Ball To Be Held June 8

Annual Fireman's Ball will be held in the Empress Hotel June 8 with Charlie Hunt's orchestra playing. Among those invited are: Lieutenant Governor George R. Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes, Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mrs. Bennett, Mayor R. B. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, Alderman A. I. Curtis and Mrs. Curtis, Alderman A. Dowell, Alderman G. E. Edgelow and Mrs. Edgelow, Alderman J. Dear Mrs. Packer: I have a laundry problem which I hope you can help me solve. My young son's drip-dry white shirts became so soiled at the cuffs I couldn't get them clean in the laundry, so I bleached them, then found they had turned a yellowish color. Can they ever be whitened again? —Mrs. H.B.

Yes, indeed, Mrs. B. Just treat them in a dip in one of the packaged dye removers which you can buy at food or drug stores where fabric dyes are sold. Full directions are on the packages.

These dye removers are designed too, to restoring sparkling whiteness to nylon and other synthetic fibers which may have become dingy-looking. They are harmless to fabrics when used according to directions.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am married to a man who is all son and no husband. Although he will never see 30 again he still behaves like a child where his parents are concerned. He phones his mother every morning before breakfast to say "hello."

He discusses everything that goes on in our home and takes their advice. The reason I'm writing is because of what happened last night.

My mother-in-law telephoned me and said, "I hope you'll like living in California, dear." I told her I didn't know what she was talking about. Her reply was, "Oh, didn't you know Bud accepted the promotion and you'll be moving out west as soon as he can sell the house?"

It burned me up to hear this news from my mother-in-law. What can I do about it?—OUTSIDE LOOKING IN.

Dear Outside: At this point you can reject. The news that you are moving out of town, even if it DID come from your mother-in-law, is all good. It could mean the little boy will have to grow up. Let's hope so.

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from the woman who years later couldn't get her college sweetheart out of her mind. You told her she was living with a dream and that if she saw the guy today she probably wouldn't give him a second look. Well, in 30 years out of 100 you'd be right and I know you must aim your advice at those 99—but listen to what happened to me:

I had day dreams (and night dreams, too), about my college sweetheart. After 17 years I was still unable to rid myself of those romantic memories although I was happily married and the mother of six lovely children.

Last month I ran into my college love at a funeral. He was more handsome than ever—still slim and straight. His wealth of jet black hair was streaked with grey. He had smile lines around his beautiful eyes. I confess I found him just as exciting as he was 17 years ago.

Now I wish I hadn't seen him because my heartache is even more acute. My advice is to leave well enough alone, girls. Don't go looking for trouble. It's had enough when trouble finds you.—I KNOW.

Dear Ann Landers: Is a 15-year-old girl entitled to some privacy?

When I get a telephone call either my mother or one of my sisters hangs around and takes in every word. When I write a letter someone is always reading over my shoulder. When I receive a letter it is opened by anyone who happens to get hold of it.

I can't tell my sisters anything in confidence because it goes straight to my mother.

Big Bow Era Blazes Into U.S. Fashions

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's trend-setting designers figure fashionable females will tie one on come fall.

The big bow era blazed like fireworks today when Samuel Winston unwrapped the fall line designed by Roxane.

Choir-boy bows, soft and fluttery, adorned suits. Tailored bows accented waistlines and nipped back lines.

Bows of silk, wool and sometimes velvet resembled butterflies with wing spans ranging from eight to 18 inches — and sometimes larger!

So voluminous was the bow on a daytime dress of Italian silk satin that one buyer remarked:

"She'll (the model) take off in a breeze."

The bow extended beyond the ends of the shoulder. The profile resembled that of a cow-catcher on the front of the old-time locomotive.

The Winston show, among several viewed along fashion row today, continued the parade of pace-setting new designs being unveiled for buyers from stores across the country.

Designer Roxane's bows, catching much attention in the garment district on Seventh Avenue, cropped up as accents at the most unlikely places on silk formals with ample skirts and minimum cover tops.

Tilted at the back, a bow took on the look of a dizzy bustle.

Right above the hem at the back, a bow nearly two feet long was shaped to give the model a music-stand look.

Tilted bows at the waist, vertical bows at the shoulder and bows at both hips — for or aft — left buyers viewing the collection bow-eyed.

The Winston collection also lived up to its high-priced tradition. The most expensive dress in the collection — $1,500 wholesale — at retail will carry a price-tag similar to that on sports cars.

The dress, a floor-length sheath, sleeveless and bare of back, looked like diamonds walking when the model showed it off. It was covered with chips of rhinestones.

—Harvey Berin's designer, Karen Stark, continued the look which long has been her trademark: The pared down, slim silhouette, usually belted at the waistline for day. Most of her short formals and cocktail dresses stressed the princess line.

A cluster of neat black velvet cocktail dresses and short length dinner suits in this collection confirmed the trend to velvet in fall collections by American designers.

—Cell Chapman drew inspiration from the sea and the air. The designer, a master at draping fabrics around curves and snipping daring necklines, turned out one silky dress that made the model look like a mermaid. The fabric slithered down the figure, leaving little walking room. The crepe creation was covered with metallic discs.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK R. MORLEY

Somewhat glory is passing and it is so unnecessary. In the Bible the world is pictured with demonic forces of evil—Principalities and Powers—but glory always broke through. "The ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads."

Nothing is more devastating to human mind or morals than disillusionment. It is one thing of which we have a surplus. No age in all mankind's history was more cynical, unbelieve, doubting, and agnostic than ours. Nothing is more damning to man today than to be branded "idealistic." Not a soul will listen to him as movement leader.

Come in the social optimism of the turn of the century. We have seen too much of the savagery beneath the veneer of civilization to believe any longer in the comforting optimism and sentimental faiths of yesterday. Art and music communally are disordered, raucous, harsh, and strident, without sweet harmonies and tunes.

The saddest fact of our time is the number of men and women who have had their faith swamped and spiritual vitality drowned by the flood of dehumanized industry, dictatorial states, and war sirens.

Death Follows 55-Year Wait For Citizenship

EUREKA, Calif. — George Rose realized a wish that he had cherished for 55 years yesterday when he became a citizen of the United States—for five minutes.

Rose, a 78-year-old bachelor, came to America from New Zealand in 1907. He planned to become a citizen, but he just kept putting it off.

Finally, at the urging of friends, he decided to take the proper steps. They were completed yesterday afternoon, and the many friends were on hand at the courthouse as the old man became a citizen.

After a round of tears and congratulations, Rose left the court and collapsed with a fatal heart attack in the street outside—still clutching his citizenship papers.

LONDON — Piano accompanist Gerald Moore has entitled his autobiography, Am I too Loud?

NEW ORLEANS — Yutaka Kikuchi now is John Patrick O'Brien Jr. The native of Japan took the new name after becoming a U.S. citizen.

RENO — Comedian Danny Kaye has virus pneumonia but is reported in good condition after a restful night in hospital here.

LONDON — A Buckingham Palace spokesman said ailing Queen Elizabeth hopes to resume her full schedule of activities Monday. She took to her bed with a sore throat and a slight fever after getting soaked by rain.

LONDON — Dr. Barbara Moore, 58-year-old marathon walker, was released from prison and celebrated the end of a 10-day hunger strike by sipping pineapple juice and nibbling on a bunch of grapes.

ROME — President Antonio Segni has accepted the nomination of John Edgar to succeed Leon Mayrand as Canadian ambassador to Italy.

PARIS — Terrorist Secret Army Organization has warned the nine judges and prosecutor trying its leader, Raoul Salas, they will "die like a dog" if Salas and former general Edmond Douhaud are executed.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — Paratrooper Charles Frock, 18, was arrested on charges of violating a law prohibiting persons under 21 from drinking beer in a public place. City Judge Wiley Graham freed Frock at a hearing, saying: "If he's old enough to jump out of airplanes and fight for his country, he's old enough to drink what he wants."

OTTAWA — U Thant, acting secretary-general of the United Nations, will be here briefly next Friday to address convocation.

BERLIN — East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht opposes any agreement on Berlin unless it provides for the withdrawal of Allied troops from the city. He also warned the United States against drawing out the Berlin talks with the Soviet Union to win time.

JAKARTA — Chusri Saleh, Indonesian minister of basic industries and mines, says "the imperialist press should no longer be allowed to operate in Indonesia," following erroneous reports of President Sukarno's assassination.

Must Be Last

Soviet announcement of impending nuclear test resumption makes it "imperative" to agree to a treaty banning future tests as soon as possible. U.S. delegate Arthur Dean has told the 17-nation disarmament conference. He said current U.S. tests and the forthcoming Russian series "should mark the end of testing for all time."

Is de Gaulle Trio Out of Tune?

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There's a new twist in the European numbers game. By some startling sleight of hand, the little six is becoming the big three.

This is a sharp descent from the original arithmetic, which called for the six nations of "little Europe" to join with the seven nations of the European free trade area. But six and seven added up to unlucky 13, and that settled that.

Now, while Britain tries singlehandedly to stretch the European six to seven, there seems to be a move within Europe to divide the six by half.

The hard-core remainder would be France, West Germany and Italy. The Paris newspaper le Figaro notes this week that President de Gaulle in his Tuesday press conference frequently referred to the unity of the three major continental powers, pointedly leaving out Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Europe Numbers Game

De Gaulle is irritated, particularly with Belgium and Holland, because they oppose his political design for a loose confederal Europe whose national sovereignties would remain intact.

It is noteworthy, in considering the big three idea, that de Gaulle has recently visited Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany and Premier Furiati of Italy.

In such a tripartite, France and West Germany would tend to be dominant but Italy, economically thriving and politically more stable than in the past, is assuming increasing importance.

De Gaulle's "triforce" view of European affairs was emphasized in his Tuesday conference when he pondered upon the genius of West Germany's Goethe, France's Chateaubriand and Italy's Dante, without so much as a mention for Shakespeare.

But the notion looks unrealistic. A tripartite Europe seems to run against the pattern of the time. In the age of the big battalions, the Western world's big money may ride on No. 28, which is the tally of nations enrolled in the Organization for European Co-operation and Development, embracing North America as well as Europe.

Surprise Surprise Surprise

SAIGON (Reuters) — The South Viet Nam government, in a bill aimed at enforcing a stricter moral code, said a woman could be convicted of prostitution if "surprised three times with three different men."

The bill also banned social dancing, immoral stage dances, professional boxing, some beauty contests and cockfighting.

Addiction Red Problem

MOSCOW (AP) — A Moscow judge called for compulsory hospitalization of drug addicts in the first public admission that narcotics is a problem among Soviet youth. Judge Aduyev complained in an Izvestia article that present Soviet law is inadequate since addicts cannot be committed for rehabilitation until they commit a crime.

Bounty Bound For Victoria With Tarita

By PETER BRUTON

Premier Bennett cheerfully let a Hollywood publicity man take over the "con" in his office yesterday as they unveiled plans to bring a replica of HMS Bounty to Vancouver and Victoria early next month.

The Bounty—of Capt. Bligh fame—was made specially for the Marlon Brando movie Mutiny on the Bounty.

Her visit here on June 11 and 12, said Premier Bennett, was merely one of many gifts from the government for Victoria's centenary.

NOT FOR MOVIE

"It's not to publicize the movie," said Metro Goldwyn Mayer publicity man Ivan Stauffer, who sat behind the premier's desk and fielded most of the questions asked at a special press conference.

But he quickly added the film had cost $20,000,000 and starred the beautiful Tahitian girl Tarita—who will also be along for the ride when the Bounty calls here.

FIRST OVERTURES

Mr. Stauffer said Premier Bennett had made the first official overtures to MGM to get the Bounty here.

The premier must have been persuaded because it had originally been planned to send the Bounty off in the other direction through the Panama Canal and up the Atlantic seaboard.

FERRY 'ADMIRAL'

Premier Bennett—'admiral' of his own government ferry fleet—grinned broadly and chuckled when Mr. Stauffer denied the reason behind the Bounty's world cruise was to publicize the movie.

"It will publicize us," chuckled the premier.

Newsworld movies of the Bounty's visit will be made here and in Vancouver and will be shown throughout North America.

FIRST CAPITAL

Victoria will be the first capital visited by the ship which was built in Nova Scotia and is close to being a duplication of the vessel which sailed to the South Seas in 1788.

The Bounty will be captained by Capt. Ellsworth Coggins, who knows Victoria well. He served here as an RCN commander between 1954 and 1958.

The Bounty, which will come into Victoria's Inner Harbor, is to be open to the public.

Fairclough Newspapers Attacks

DUNCAN—Immigration Minister Mrs. Ellen Fairclough has attacked newspapers in Canada for capitalizing on some unfortunate immigrants and Indians.

In a campaign speech here, she said: "There are the odd ones who are troublemakers who are picked up and used by some sections of mass media of communication to promote circulation."

FAIR GAME?

"I suppose that's fair game if they can sell papers by highlighting someone's supposed bad treatment, but I wonder if it is fair to the poor creatures concerned."

Mrs. Fairclough said most of these people search Canada with their traditions and contribute considerably to the economy.

"There are no handouts and no Santa Claus gifts in this election," she said, but every possible effort is made to keep the economy rolling.

"It's coming here because your premier asked for it," said Mr. Stauffer.

"This is a wonderful province," he added. "I haven't been here for three or four years and a lot has been done. You've certainly got a wonderful premier."

Premier Bennett again grinned broadly.

"I hope you will take this in the right spirit," he told the assembled newsmen.

Sidney Picks Barbara Erickson

By BERT BENNY

A comely 17-year-old brunette from Saanichton, Barbara Erickson, last night was chosen Miss Sidney for 1962-63.

Her princesses are Cathie Downie and Sharyn Ridge, both of Sidney, and both also 17 years old.

FASHION SHOW

A capacity crowd gathered at Sanson Hall for the queen contest and, as well as seeing and hearing the contestants, thoroughly enjoyed a really smart—if somewhat prolonged—fashion show.

Queen Barbara will be crowned at the Sidney Day activities in July.

Well-Known Kiwanian Dies at 66

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Hayward's Chapel for Leslie Aberdeen Gordon, 66, a well-known Victoria Kiwanian and retired businessman.

Mr. Gordon died yesterday at his home, 571 Somerset Street.

Born in New Westminster and resident in Victoria since 1904, he served overseas in the First World War with the medical corps and later in the Royal Flying Corps.

In December, 1960, he retired as Victoria West plant manager for Imperial Oil Limited after 38 years of service.

Mr. Gordon was active in the Kiwanis Club, the United Commercial Travellers and the Church of Our Lord.

He is survived by his widow, Jane Ethel; two sons, Ronald Leslie of Toronto and Kenneth John of Vancouver; five grandchildren and one brother, Rt. Rev. D. A. G. Rankin, who will officiate at the service, with burial at Royal Oak Burial Park.

Islanders Elect Cook

DUNCAN—Ald. John Cook of Nanaimo was elected Friday as president of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities.

Reeve Donald Morton of North Cowichan was elected vice-president. New executive is Ald. C. N. Blair of Alberni.

Reeve R. G. Lee of Central Saanich, Coun. James Bryant of Esquimalt and Commissioner Mrs. Edgar Chiles of Comox. Next year's conference will be in Esquimalt.

THE BOUNTY

B.C. Hydro
Fined $50

ALBERNI — The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority was fined the minimum of $50 in police court Friday for operating an overweight vehicle on River Road.

A spokesman for the government agency pleaded guilty to the charge, which involved moving a Michigan crane over the highway.

Speech Set Tuesday

Mrs. Alice Cresswell will speak at a meeting of the Victoria and District British Israel Association at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday in the Newstead Hall, 124 Port.

Chamber Presses Campaign For Stricter Food Controls

Using a three-pronged attack, Victoria Chamber of Commerce yesterday adopted resolutions pressing municipal, provincial and federal governments to bring in stricter control of foodstuffs.

Spurred by the sale of diseased beef liver by a Victoria butcher recently, directors of the chamber unanimously approved these resolutions.

First resolution urged all governmental bodies represented on the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health to adopt immediately a bylaw forbidding the sale of unsalted meat.

Second resolution called on the provincial government to set up "an effective system of governmental inspection of meat" to provide adequate safeguards throughout the province.

Third resolution called for the provincial and federal governments to study laws governing the sale of unsafe and unsanitary foodstuffs, generally, and bring in legislation to close any loopholes that exist.

The metro health board will meet next week to consider whether to prosecute the butcher accused of selling the liver.

Architects Hit Shuffle At City Hall

By TED SHACKLEFORD

In an unprecedented move, Vancouver Island architects have intervened in the re-organization of city hall engineering staff.

RODERICK CLARK

Revenge Of Heckled

VANCOUVER (CP) — For Lawrence Karshaw, heckling politicians, especially those belonging to the New Democratic Party, is a hobby.

He said he has been doing it for two years, not even sparing his brother Brian, president of the Vancouver Centre Progressive Conservative Association.

He said he has been punched, footed, kicked and threatened with an iron poker and warned never to attend an NDP meeting again.

Yesterday was the day of retribution. He received a telephone apology for his treatment at NDP meetings and an invitation to replace a speaker at a meeting in Vancouver Quadra.

When he arrived with a 2,000-word speech at the address given he found an empty stage.

$670,000 Star

Real Madrid soccer club has traded inside forward Luis del Sol to Torino of Italy for the greatest fee in soccer history—$670,000. Previous high for a soccer trade was set earlier this season when Barcelona's Luis Suarez went to Internazionale of Milan for $400,000.

Train in Wales

LONDON (UPI) — Seven West German battalions totaling about 2,300 men will train in Wales at intervals this summer.

Lifton Death Appeal Heard Here June 18

Appeal of Eric Lifton against conviction for the murder of Vancouver city detective will be heard in B.C. Appeal Court at Victoria's court house, June 18.

In a letter received at city hall yesterday, the Vancouver Island Chapter of the Architectural Institute of British Columbia suggested that city architect Roderick Clark should be reinstated as head of building inspection and zoning administration.

A week ago, Mr. Clark—head of the city's planning and inspection division for four years—was shifted out of his office and water and sewer engineer William Jorgenson was moved in.

SWITCH REGRETTED

Mr. Clark was designated as a planning officer.

Addressed to Mayor R. B. Wilson and council, the letter regretted that the two functions were no longer under the control of Mr. Clark.

"It is felt that such control during the past four years has brought great benefit to this city."

RECONSIDER

"In the light of these evident benefits, it is hoped that reconsideration can be given to the recently announced re-organization in order to retain the advantages above mentioned."

Mayor Wilson said last night he had not seen the letter and had no comment to make. The letter apparently "disappeared."

Terrorists Step Up Murders in Dark

ALGIERS (AP) — Terrorist attacks slackened most of the day in Algiers but by nightfall the slaughter increased once more, pushing the death toll from six to 15 in a few hours.

The explosion of a booby-trapped car took the biggest single toll — a 75-year-old Frenchwoman and three Moslems.

BAZOOKA BLASTS

Later the sound of bursting bazooka projectiles was heard near the Moslem district of Dar El Kel.

Around Oran, another stronghold of the European Secret Army in its drive to keep Algeria French, the terrorists stepped up their activity.

MAN, WIFE DIE

A European man and wife and six Moslems were killed in separate attacks outside Oran. There were 12 bomb explosions in the town of Perrégaux.

Tricked To Safety

Cigarette offered by navy Capt. J. B. Jensen was lure used to grab hand of an identified sailor and pull him to safety from ledge on Halifax's Angus MacDonald Bridge where he had climbed Friday night, ending one of worst traffic jams in Halifax history. — (CP Photosfax.)

Humanitarian, Says Liberal

Take 1,000 Chinese

CALGARY (CP) — Canada should bring in 1,000 refugees from Communist China as a humanitarian gesture, Dr. Frank Morley, Liberal candidate for Calgary South, said Friday night.

Dr. Morley said the move could spark similar action throughout the Western world and could serve as a potent weapon in the free world's struggle with communism.

"I would not want this to become a political issue, I'm making the suggestion on humanitarian grounds and as an individual."

Dr. Morley said the Communist Chinese have used restrictive Western immigration policies as a telling weapon in their propaganda battle.

"The Chinese Reds have been able to tell their people that the white man is not concerned with the problems of the Chinese; that the white man is interested in the Oriental only as a pawn in the battle between democracy and communism."

"A humanitarian gesture of the sort I have suggested would do much to convince the enslaved Chinese that we do indeed care about their problems and that we are concerned with their welfare."

Chinese have proven to be good immigrants, he said. "They're as fine as immigrants as we've ever had. They work hard, they pay their bills, they take care of their possessions and they don't sponge on the public."

The do-faceted bovine recently was shipped for sale to the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool livestock division market in Regina.

It was said to Gervase Smith, a Regina livestock man, who pastured the animal. When the animal was brought to the stockyard last week by owner Ed Smith of Delmar, Sask., livestock men noticed it had many deer-like characteristics.

Animal experts said a cross between a wild deer and a domestic cow was impossible and unknown, but, after looking at the animal in the stockyard, agreed: "It sure looks like it has happened."

Laboratory test of a blood sample revealed the animal had bovine blood. Samples of hair prove to be typically bovine. The animal had normal bovine hooves, but its legs, hindquarters, neck and head appear to be more deer-like than bovine.

A puzzling fact to the animal has lost three sets of horns in three years, dropping them in January as deer do.

A fourth set now is growing from soft tissue not attached to the animal's skull as bovine horns normally are.

Another Pipeline Definite

WINNIPEG (CP) — Agriculture Minister Hamilton said Friday a second Trans-Canada pipeline would have to be built.

Crude oil needs of Montreal would demand a second line "by 1967," he agreed.

The line probably will follow the route of the CNR, would have to be built years in advance of its need and would have to be in Montreal by the time industry's needs were realized.

Children Hurled From Ninth Floor

BOSTON (UPI) — Two young children were hurled to their deaths last night from the ninth floor of the Statler-Hilton Hotel by their 30-year-old mother, police said.

Police were holding the woman pending further investigation.

The woman first threw her three-year-old daughter and then her seven-year-old son to the pavement below, police said. Both children were dead on arrival at a hospital.

Police said the incident occurred shortly before midnight, about six hours after the woman checked into the downtown hotel.

Hoffa Charged In Big Payoff As Woes Mount

JAMES HOFFA

WASHINGTON (AP)

—Teamsters Union President James Hoffa was indicted by a federal grand jury yesterday on charges of accepting more than $1,000,000 in illegal payments from a Michigan trucking company.

Attorney-General Robert Kennedy announced the two-count indictment was returned in Nashville, Tenn.

He said it accuses Hoffa and the late Owen (Bert) Brennan, former Teamsters vice-president, of receiving $1,000,000 from Commercial Carriers Inc.

CO-DEFENDANT

Kennedy said Commercial Carriers, an automobile transport company, also was named as a defendant.

Kennedy said one count accuses Hoffa and Brennan of violating a Taft-Hartley Act provision which prohibits employee representatives from demanding or receiving payments from employers, except for wages or other specified exceptions.

$10,000 FINE

Conviction on the charges could bring a maximum penalty of $10,000 fine and a year in jail for Hoffa and $5,000 fine for Commercial Carriers.

Hoffa at present is under indictment in Florida on federal charges alleging misuse of more than $300,000 in union funds. The Florida charges were related to a real estate development in Brevard County, Fla.

REMARKS WITH UNION

Meanwhile, Sam Baron, 30-year-old chief of the union's warehouse division, broke with the Teamsters Friday after refusing to withdraw an assault charge against Hoffa.

Hoffa is free on $500 bail. He faces a maximum penalty of a $500 fine and one year in jail on each count if found guilty.

Body in Creek

NELSON (CP) — The naked body of five-year-old Mark Hubberts, object of a search by hundreds of volunteers since he disappeared Tuesday, was found Friday in Cottonwood Creek. The fast-flowing creek had ripped off his clothing.

The body was found by G. T. Higashi, a CPR employee, snagged to a tree.

De Gaulle Sees 'Arbiter' Role

GUERET, France (Reuters) — President de Gaulle said Friday night "Europe must play the role of an arbiter between the two colonial powers." (See Page 20.)

Political union of Europe is necessary in order that there should be a great force and a centre of influence which only Europe could provide, he said.

De Gaulle, who has been told of President Kennedy's Thursday remarks in Washington about Franco-American relations, added: "We form part of an alliance and we have no intention of being unfaithful to it."

SOME VOICE

Kennedy condemned de Gaulle's policy of individual nations having their own nuclear strike force and reminded his allies that the U.S. is carrying the main defense burden and would have "some voice" on Berlin.

De Gaulle warned that he would not hesitate to use his powers to ensure continuity and stability of government in France if this became necessary.

Cow Has Deer-Like Features Sheds Horns Every January

REGINA (CP) — A cow that some think is a cross between a cow and a deer has been put out to pasture where it will be available for continued tests on its ancestry.

The do-faceted bovine recently was shipped for sale to the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool livestock division market in Regina.

It was said to Gervase Smith, a Regina livestock man, who pastured the animal. When the animal was brought to the stockyard last week by owner Ed Smith of Delmar, Sask., livestock men noticed it had many deer-like characteristics.

Animal experts said a cross between a wild deer and a domestic cow was impossible and unknown, but, after looking at the animal in the stockyard, agreed: "It sure looks like it has happened."

Laboratory test of a blood sample revealed the animal had bovine blood. Samples of hair prove to be typically bovine. The animal had normal bovine hooves, but its legs, hindquarters, neck and head appear to be more deer-like than bovine.

A puzzling fact to the animal has lost three sets of horns in three years, dropping them in January as deer do.

A fourth set now is growing from soft tissue not attached to the animal's skull as bovine horns normally are.

25,000,000 Year?

Old Bones
Of Mammal Discovered

By IAN STREET

Fossilized bones of a large marine mammal which probably died more than 25,000,000 years ago have been recovered from the area of Carmanah Point on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Dr. Clifford Carl of the provincial museum, who brought the specimens back from a recent trip to the area, said yesterday he will send them to the national museum in Ottawa for positive identification.

"I am sticking my neck out when I say these are not the bones of a reptile, but those of a large marine mammal," said Dr. Carl. It could be an ancient form of whale, now extinct.

DIRECT DIGGING

He hopes the director of the national museum, Dr. L. S. Russell, a leading paleontologist who has come to B.C. previously in search of specimens, will personally direct digging operations for the remainder of the skeleton.

It lies embedded in sandstone at about the half-tide mark on a remote bay south of the lighthouse at Carmanah Point. The discovery was first made by Peter Williams of Victoria, a crewman aboard a mission ship, in the summer of 1961.

SCATTERED PARTS

Fraser Shepherd, a geologist with the B.C. department of mines, accompanied Dr. Carl to the site where fossilized fragments of vertebrae were scattered over an area roughly 25 feet by 12 feet.

Another group of fossil remains was found about 200 feet away from the first one. The largest bone found appears to be a rib and is about 40 inches long. This would indicate the mammal was at least eight feet through the body.

Its length is estimated to have been about 30 feet.

45,000,000 YEARS
Mr. Shepherd said the sandstone deposits on the beach which contain the fossils belong to the oligocene period and are between 25,000,000 and 40,000,000 years old.

Overlying the sandstone is a conglomerate layer which forms the cliffs above the beach today. The geologist said this indicates the whole coastline was raised, possibly 15,000,000 years ago, and the bottom sandstone layer exposed by continuous erosion.

FEAR AMATEURS

The site can only be reached by boat or helicopter. Museum officials, nevertheless, are somewhat concerned at the possibility some "amateur rockhounds" might attempt to dig up the fossilized remains before they can be studied.

Union or Profession

Teachers Must Decide

DUNCAN—B.C. teachers must decide whether their federation is a union or a professional group, B.C. School Trustees Association president R. E. Lester of Hanes said in a press release issued here yesterday.

He said directors of the trustees' association believe public education in B.C. faces a serious threat as a result of the recent teachers' convention—and teachers must take a searching look at their professional position.

LED AWAY?

Mr. Lester said trustees believe teachers are being led away from the high professional goals at which they have been aiming, and fear the whole profession in B.C. will suffer if the trend continues.

"We do not want to see teachers destroy the prestige they have built up in recent years. Nor do we want to lose the understanding and increasing

Becher Bay Boat
Remains Mystery

The mystery of a broken-up 18-foot outboard boat found on the beach between Mary HM and the entrance to Becher Bay May 15 is still unsolved.

The shattered boat bore the words "... skis" and "WN" on its stern and "White's Cove" on its port side.

Reports from RCMP at Sooke have been relayed to the United States Coast Guard, but there has been no identification.

HMS BELFAST SLIDES PAST DUNTZE HEAD INTO ESQUIMALT HARBOR.

Cruiser Came Early

City Hails Belfast
Men Pile Ashore

Victorians opened their hearts and their city yesterday to welcome HMC Belfast, a Royal Navy cruiser, and her crew of 847 officers and men.

By mid afternoon more than 100 men had left on weekend leave to stay with Victoria residents who offered their hospitality, and many others were staying with friends and relatives.

Due at Naden at 9 a.m., the Belfast arrived 45 minutes early and threw RCN arrangements out. But despite the short notice, a "reduced" HMCS Naden band of 15 men was in-place on the government dock to welcome the British ship.

BIGGEST CRUISER

Biggest cruiser in the Royal Navy, the 15,000-ton Belfast, with its lattice mast like TV towers, dwarfed the weather-ships St. Catharines and St. Stephen which were also tied up at the dock.

Along with her crew, the ship carries a number of "officials" and "unofficials," her captain, Capt. Morgan Giles, explained yesterday.

As part of a 100-year-old RN tradition, ships operating in the Far East and Indian waters sign on some natives as stewards and mess boys. These are the "officials."

The "unofficials" are native tailors, broom-makers, barbers and laundry boys who set up shop on the ship and serve the crew.

"Unofficials" are often carried to England on the ship and then transfer to another RN ship on its way back.

Capt. Giles said one "official" and one "unofficial" were involved in the attempt to smuggle narcotics on the Belfast recently. The drug haul was discovered in the traditional drug search carried out when a British ship leaves an Orient port.

The Belfast will be open to visitors between 1:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. today as part of the RCN Pacific Command's Navy Day program.

Full Support for Harbord

City Community Chest
Revives with a BangWallace Attacks
Firms, Budgets

Greater Victoria's almost-defunct Community Chest revived with a bang yesterday.

A full meeting of directors voted unanimously to go ahead with the 1962-63 drive under the chairmanship of Justice Harbord. The vote came after a fact-finding report by president George Gregory which showed:

● Only 50 per cent of the larger Chest donors would go on record in support of the Community Chest's United Appeal to the exclusion of all other charities.

● Press and radio could not make a "Chest only" commitment of support.

● Some segments of the public greeted the news of the possible dissolution of the Community Chest's United Appeal with relief.

But directors voted to withdraw a previous motion to disband.

The meeting also heard straight-from-the-shoulder criticisms from John Wallace, general manager at Yarrow, who said some companies, his own included, had failed to match increased employee giving in last year's drive.

Mr. Wallace also said the Chest must take a "firm stand" in maintaining discipline over the budgets of the 22 agencies.

He said the common practice of whitening down agency demands each year had reverted to "bargaining" sessions, with agencies adding 20 per cent as a "throw-away" in bargaining.

'But Magnificent'

Directors pledged themselves to give "100 per cent support" to three-time campaign chairman Harbord.

"When I asked him to take the job, I added that he would be crazy if he did," reported Mayor R. B. Wilson. "He's crazy—but magnificent."

The mayor said dissolution of the Chest would be "a tragedy" for all the people who have counted on it for help for years.

He found a parallel between the problems of the Chest and the question of amalgamation. But those problems won't be solved by "closing city hall" and disbanding police and fire departments with the hope the municipalities will appeal for merger.

Volunteer Harbord, in a letter, said he had carefully weighed the outcome of the move to disband the Chest in the hope of creating a truly United Appeal by public demand.

Such a move would bring nationwide bad publicity to Victoria, and in the event that the public failed to ask for a United Appeal, Greater Victoria would be faced with a large number of separate campaigns next year.

He had initially favored dissolution in the hope it would act as the shock treatment needed for true unification of charity drives under one heading.

Only Half Agreed

Mr. Gregory said he had canvassed 20 larger donors to see if they favored excluding all other charities but only 50 per cent agreed.

"The biggest corporate giver—which is also within an ace of being the largest payroll donor—declared emphatically against such a proposal," he said.

Mr. Wallace urged letters be sent to companies which had failed to match the increased donations in employee giving. He said his own company intended to increase its donation.

"But we cannot side with any attempt to push (other agencies) into the United Appeal. That is something that will come about only when we manage to surpass our quota and prove to these outside agencies the value of membership."

In urging greater policing of agency budgets, he said tighter budget controls would tend to increase the "self reliance" of those receiving help. "People are more inclined to lean on the agencies if they know they have plenty of money."

Mr. Wallace said directors should enter the campaign with no thought of "changing the apathy and indifference of the public."

"We have made our point and now have our own responsibility to the community, no matter what anyone thinks."

Mr. Harbord, set May 25 as the date for the first campaign meeting.

Next year the drive will be under the direction of John A. Wallace and J. Alan Baker. In 1964 Hugh Stephen and Donald J. Lawson will share the job and Herschel A. Smith has volunteered for 1965.

CLOSED SHOP

Teachers have a closed shop and dues check-off, coupled with greater security of tenure than any other professional group or union, he said.

"In return for these privileges they have accepted compulsory arbitration of salaries. Now some want to retain all the privileges and at the same time do away with compulsory arbitration and that, in simple words, means the right to strike."

FEW REALIZE
"We are convinced teachers as a whole don't want anything to do with striking, but too few of them realize that is where they are being led and that is where they will end up unless they recognize what is happening," said Mr. Lester.

ADVANCE WARNING: City lawyer David Hummel made a short speech of introduction for Liberal candidate Thomas Foster Isherwood at an election meeting in Montserrat School the other day.

Mr. Isherwood dashed off a nice little note to Mr. Hummel thanking him for his great speech.

It lost some of its effect when it was delivered three or four hours before Mr. Hummel spoke!

● To visit the Victoria centennial exhibition.

The skiers will leave Port Angeles at 10 a.m. and expect to make the trip in an hour. They will leave Victoria again from the Inner Harbor at 4 p.m.

QUALICUM BEACH—Members of the Qualicum Beach Chamber of Commerce have approved formation of a joint Parksville-Qualicum Chamber of Commerce for district and tourist promotion.

The meeting at which this decision was made followed a joint meeting of the Parksville and Qualicum Beach councils and chambers, when recommendations of a special committee were discussed.

These included the joint chamber, a brochure to advertise the area as a whole and that all advertising stress regional and off-season advantages. The meeting agreed that, assuming both chambers are in favor, each will appoint 10 members to the joint chamber to meet June 26.

FULFORD — Queen of the May this year is Nancy Reynolds, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Reynolds of Cash-eon Lake. Her princesses are sisters Jean, 17, and Patricia Galbraith, 16.

Sisters seem to run in the competition for, last year, Queen Lynn Akerman, who will crown the new queen Monday, had her sister Roberta as the princess royal.

Events sponsored by the Fulford hall committee include parade, sports and contests for children and adults, including the horseshoe tournament between the Ganges and Fulford men, with the Jimmy Gressart trophy as the prize.

Ten will be served in Mahon hall and the day will end with the grand ball at Fulford hall in the evening.

Law Doesn't Divide Sheep from Goats

CAMPBELL RIVER — The B.C. Animals Act doesn't separate the sheep from the goats, farmer A. Hickey of Masters Road has learned.

Mansueto dogs recently attacked one of his two goats, injuring it so badly it had to be destroyed.

RCMP say that, when the dog's owner is found, they must prosecute under the sheep protection clause since no specific goat species was named.

NANAIMO — Prominent local lawyer Hugh Heath says special areas should be set up in B.C. in which people would be licensed to hunt.

In other, more occupied areas no hunting would be allowed and landowners might not even be required to post their lands. In this way, the rights of hunters and landowners could be clarified.

PORT ALBERNI — A pro-posal for a permanent local employment committee here has been tabled by Alberni valley winter employment committee until its next meeting Sept. 19.

Letters will go to organizations in the district asking that delegates be appointed and names and addresses be forwarded to the secretary well in advance of the opening of the new term.

The employment picture in this district is a little brighter than at the same time last year, said vice-chairman Fred King.

He was elected chairman for the coming term and Ald. Les Hammer of Port Alberni was chosen vice-chairman. D. D. Sargent of the National Employment Service staff will continue to act as secretary.

Mrs. Alice Crommel will speak at a meeting of the Victoria and District British Israel Association at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday in the Newstead Hall, 734 Fort.

Persecution in Nanaimo?

NANAIMO — Local lawyer R. Strongitharm objected yesterday to Magistrate Lionel Beaver-Potts hearing a case involving his client.

Donald James McLaren, charged with dangerous driving, was remanded to June 19. He had previously appeared before Mr. Beaver-Potts on an impaired driving charge which had resulted in an acquittal.

Certain remarks made by the magistrate in dealing with that case should disqualify him from hearing the new charges, Mr. Strongitharm said. He also claimed repeated appearances in court required of his client constitute persecution, not prosecution.

Numerous convictions as far back as 1957 against Carl S. Geary, who was represented in court by his mother, brought from Magistrate Lionel Beaver-Potts the comment "he evidently lacks a sense of responsibility."

Geary was charged with driving at 80 miles an hour while restricted by his licence to a maximum of 50.

Mrs. Geary was ordered to pay a $25 fine and advise her son his licence is suspended for three months.

A recent collision with a bus spelled a clean record for Stanley Ralph Thompson, who was represented in court by his wife.

The charge was turning to the right at other than an intersection. The fine was $25.

No fewer than eight defects were found in equipment of a Hub City Paving and Construction Co. truck, court was told. Only charge laid was operating a truck without a horn and fine was $20.

Richard Arthur Hosker was fined $30 for consuming liquor in a public place. He was charged after empty beer bottles were found in a car, driven by someone else, which police stopped because of "erratic driving."

RODERICK CLACK

Revenge Of Heckled

VANCOUVER (CP)—For Lawrence Kershaw, heckling politicians, especially those belonging to the New Democratic Party, is a hobby.

He said he has been doing it for two years, not even sparing his brother Brian, president of the Vancouver Centre Progressive Conservative Association.

He said he's been punched, jostled, kicked and threatened with an iron poker and warned never to attend an NDP meeting again.

Yesterday was the day of retribution. He received a telephone apology for his treatment at NDP meetings and an invitation to replace a speaker at a meeting in Vancouver Quadra.

When he arrived with a 2,000-word speech at the address given he found an empty store.

Lifton Death Appeal Heard Here June 18

Appeal of Eric Lifton against conviction for the murder of Vancouver city detective will be heard in B.C. Appeal Court at Victoria's court house, June 18.

In a letter received at city hall yesterday, the Vancouver Island Chapter of the Architectural Institute of British Columbia suggested that city architect Roderrick Clack should be reinstated as head of building inspection and zoning administration.

A week ago, Mr. Clack—head of the city's planning and inspection division for four years—was shifted out of his office and water and sewer engineer William Jorgensen was moved in.

SWITCH REGRETTED

Mr. Clack was designated as a planning officer.

Addressed to Mayor R. B. Wilson and council, the letter regretted that the two functions were no longer under the control of Mr. Clack.

"It is felt that such control during the past four years has brought great benefit to this city."

RECONSIDER

"In the light of these evident benefits, it is hoped that reconsideration can be given to the recently announced reorganization in order to retain the advantages above mentioned."

Mayor Wilson said last night he had not seen the letter and had no comment to make. The letter apparently "disappeared."

Terrorists Step Up Murders in Dark

ALGIERS (AP)—Terrorist attacks slackened most of the day in Algiers but by nightfall the slaughter increased once more, pushing the death toll from six to 15 in a few hours.

The explosion of a booby-trapped car took the biggest single toll—a 75-year-old Frenchwoman and three Muslims.

BAZOOKA BLASTS

Later the sound of bursting bazooka projectiles was heard near the Muslim district of Dar El Kel.

Around Oran, another stronghold of the European Secret Army in its drive to keep Algeria French, the terrorists stepped up their activity.

NAN, WIFE DIE

A European man and wife and six Muslims were killed in separate attacks outside Oran. There were 12 bomb explosions in the town of Perrégaux.

Justice Takes Gamble Five Years for Killing

NANAIMO—Mr. Justice J. G. A. Hutcheson took a gamble Friday and sentenced a youth convicted of manslaughter to the beating death of a 22-year-old father to only five years.

Maximum sentence for manslaughter is life imprisonment.

Gary Vern Parkinson, 18, of Courtenay was found guilty in the death of Donald Butler in Courtenay Jan. 27 after being kicked and beaten as he lay on the road surrounded by a milling gang of youths.

Parkinson was also convicted of causing bodily harm and given five years concurrent.

Mr. Justice Hutcheson said: "No

punishment you can undergo will bring back the man who died. You have to live with that memory.

"I am going to take a gamble on you, Parkinson. Because of your youth I think you can be rehabilitated. Instead of giving you a heavy sentence I will make it five years."

Parkinson's foster mother broke down as the sentence was passed and was led sobbing from the court room.

Defence counsel Harold Hine said Parkinson was raised in a home where there was no father.

Trial of Peter Louis and Martin Day in the same case begins Tuesday.

Humanitarian, Says Liberal

Take 1,000 Chinese

CALGARY (CP)—Canada should bring in 1,000 refugees from Communist China as a humanitarian gesture, Dr. Frank Morley, Liberal candidate for Calgary South, said Friday night.

Dr. Morley said the move could spark similar action throughout the Western world and could serve as a potent weapon in the free world's struggle with communism.

"I would not want this to become a political issue. I'm making the suggestion on humanitarian grounds and as an individual."

Dr. Morley said the Communist Chinese have used restrictive Western immigration policies as a telling weapon in their propaganda battle.

"The Chinese Reds have been able to tell their people that the white man is not concerned with the problems of the Chinese; that the whites are interested in the Oriental only as a pawn in the battle between democracy and communism."

"A humanitarian gesture of the sort I have suggested would do much to convince the enslaved Chinese that we do indeed care about their problems and that we are concerned with their welfare."

Chinese have proven to be good immigrants, he said.

"They're as fine as immigrants as we've ever had. They work hard, they pay their bills, they take care of their poor and they don't sponge on the public."

It was said to Gervase Smith, a Regina livestock man, who pastured the animal. When the animal was brought to the stockyards last week by owner Ed Smith of Dubuc, Sask., livestock men noticed it had many deer-like characteristics.

The deer-faced bovine recently was shipped for sale to the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool livestock division market in Regina.

Animal experts said a cross between a cow and a deer has been put out to pasture where it will be available for continued tests on its ancestry.

Cow Has Deer-Like Features Sheds Horns Every January

Summer Posts Notice On Lampposts Soon

Flowers to pretty up city streets are being readied by parks board at Beacon Hill Park. Planned hanging baskets—450 of them—surround parks board employee Horace Lindsey—are started in greenhouse, will go up on downtown lamp standards first week of June. A wild deer and a domestic cow was impossible and unknown, but after looking at the animal in the stockyards agreed: "It sure looks like it has happened."

Laboratory test of a blood sample showed the animal had bovine blood. Samples of hair prove to be typically bovine. The animal had normal bovine heads, but its legs, hindquarters, neck and head appear to be more deer-like than bovine.

A puzzling fact is the animal has lost three sets of horns in three years, dropping them in January as deer do.

A fourth set now is growing from soft tissue not attached to the animal's skull as bovine horns normally are.
